Today

When Darkness Lasts Forever.
Digestion and Genius.
Oysters Return.
Poor Little Yak. It Died.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LIGHT WAS gradually shut off from the earth; darkness, over a narrow belt of land, lasted a minute and a half; everybody was impressed.

Some day our sun will die and darkness will come over the earth to last, forever, or until the earth breaks up, to be reassembled elsewhere billions of years later.

And nobody takes that seriously. We have little imagination; only today, tomorrow and yesterday interest us.

NO MORE eclipse here until November, when a dark donkey will shut out a shining elephant, or vice versa.

In Europe there is a sudden eclipse of hope for peaceful agreement about armaments and such things.

Germany unexpectedly demands the right to build up a great army, "for protection" of course, and France is greatly agitated. French statesmanship surely could not expect the Germans to endure forever helplessness and humiliation. The French did not do so after 1870 and Sedan.

IT IS IMPORTANT for you to know that good digestion, and SWIFT digestion, are important to evolution, which is another word for progress. Dr. C. M. Yonge tells the British Association for the Advancement of Science about it.

Low form of animal life and human life have little hope of mental improvement, because getting their food and digesting it, takes nearly all their time. The higher races of carnivorous men have ruled the world, because their food has been quickly procured, and digested, leaving leisure for thinking and planning.

THAT INTERESTS vegetarians especially. The time and energy they waste, extracting nourishment from vegetables, robs them of mental opportunity.

This is how it works: Nature spends millions of years changing rock into soil. Earth worms chew the soil, and make it fertile. Grass grows slowly. The cow eats the grass and spends two to four years producing a beef steak.

Man eats the beef steak and digests it, all in an hour, and has 23 hours of the day for "higher evolution."

SOME OF SAPPHO'S most beautiful lines tell of the evening hour that brings back the sheep and goats, bring back the child to its mother.

Another pleasant hour is the beginning of September, that brings back the blue point and the Cape Cod and all the other oysters, including the giants harvested near Baltimore.

William H. Raye, who finds out about oysters for the General Foods Corporation, supplies information that makes the humble oyster seem more important than the dinosaur.

THE OYSTER crop of twenty million bushels is worth eighteen million dollars, employing many thousands of men. The oyster is unlike the automobile, corn, wheat and oil, in that there has never been an oyster over-production.

Modern quick-freezing methods make fresh oysters available all year round, and their food value is very great.

California has oysters the size of your thumb nail. France and England eat oysters that taste of copper, excellent, when you are used to them.

They say the first man that swallowed an oyster was brave. The man who does not eat them now, is foolish.

SAD TO announce, that baby yak, born during the eclipse and named "Clipse" by its keepers, is dead. It lived only one night. The keepers say it was feeble at birth. They do not think the name or the eclipse had anything to do with its shortness of life.

J. B. S. HALDANE, able British scientist, says the perfect man can never exist. There must be different kinds of men, each "the best" in his own way.

An oyster could not have imagined a caveman, a caveman could not have imagined the pilot of an airplane. Mr. Haldane, with all his intelligence, could not imagine the perfect man, who would be BALANCED man.

THAT PERFECT man, possessing in one brain all the knowledge available on earth, with an absolute sense of justice, may some day exist.

According to scientists, his head will be nearly a perfect sphere, very little of the circumference wasted on eyes, ears, nose, swallowing apparatus —the part we call "a face."

"It hath not yet been shown what we shall be."

Predictions are futile. The perfect man would probably seem to us dull. The nearly perfect man (you meet him occasionally) is dull enough.

TIME, WITH ITS daylight and darkness, can be used in many ways. At Whitefield, New Hampshire, thieves robbed hotel guests, when the sun was hidden, everybody watching the eclipse.

At the same time, Capt. Stevens, for the National Geographical Society, was watching, in the sun's corona, an outburst of flame, 864,000 miles in

CROONER, WIFE COMPROMISE

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Hyman Bushel, attorney for both Rudy Vallee and Mrs. Fay Webb Vallee, announced today that the Vallees had concluded a formal agreement of separation.

Bushnell said:

"Mr. and Mrs. Vallee have concluded a formal agreement of separation and have adjusted without the unnecessary unpleasantness frequently attendant upon a situation of that kind and to their mutual satisfaction their future rights and obligations.

"As a lawyer I am not at liberty to disclose the terms of their agreement, and although I do not say that no such course will be adopted, no proceedings have been instituted to bring about a complete dissolution of their marriage."

POLICE KILL 2 BANDITS IN CROWD

Gun Battle in Street Causes Panic; Four Men Wounded

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—In a gun battle in a crowded street, two bandits, one of whom was identified by the police as Charles Kelly, 45, of Philadelphia, were killed and a third wounded, and two policemen and a civilian were shot when the authorities interrupted an attempt by four armed men to hold up the pawnshop of George S. Thain in Brooklyn today.

The wounded bandit was said by the police to be William Dunn, 20, of Brooklyn. He was shot three times and is in a critical condition. The fourth bandit escaped.

Patrolman Raffaele Malfronte, 29, was shot in the left leg. Patrolman Peter F. DeCarlo, 32, was shot in the neck and the bullet was deflected to the spine, causing paralysis.

The bystander who was shot in the left leg was Piscario Nunzio, 60, of Brooklyn. After treatment at the scene, he went home.

From the time an alarm reached police radio headquarters: "Suspicious men seen entering Thain pawnshop on Court street"—it was only a matter of minutes before police had surrounded the place, a crowd had gathered and was pushing its way toward the interior of the shop, shots rang out, men scooted out of doors, swayed and dropped.

After reserves arrived with a sub-machine gun, there was pandemonium, women screaming, men shouting, everyone jostling, pushing, morbidly curious and at the same time terribly afraid.

Debt Slash Campaign Admitted

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(Universal.)—An admission that a drive is on to extend the Hoover war debt moratorium came today from Representative Will R. Wood, of Indiana, an administration stalwart and the Republican leader on appropriations in the House.

This significant development followed publication by the Hearst newspapers of the six-point plan of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, for the "liquidation" of Europe's debts to the United States.

Wood conferred Wednesday with President Hoover.

The Indiana Congressman declined to disclose the source of his information, but said:

"It looks to me like there will be a move for cancellation of the war debts or an extension of the moratorium.

"I do not know how or where this move will originate, but apparently the debtor countries are maneuvering for a way to get out of paying their just debts to the United States.

"I am against cancellation of these debts.

"I am against granting an extension of the moratorium under present conditions.

"The debtor countries have made no efforts to economize and get their financial houses in order. If they would reduce their vast armaments they would save a lot of money.

"The American taxpayers ought not to have to carry these debts on top of their present tax burdens, especially when the debtor nations do not make the slightest move to cut their budgets."

GOV. ROOSEVELT SILENT

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Without answering the charge made by James J. Walker in resigning as Mayor of New York that he had received an "unfair and un-American trial," Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt formally terminated the Walker ouster hearings this afternoon.

Only six spectators and a handful of reporters were present in the executive chamber when the Governor brought one of the most sensational and dramatic hearings in the capitol's history to a drab end.

Gov. Roosevelt made it plain after he had formally ended the hearing that he would have no comment—now or later—on any of the charges made by Walker that the hearing had been turned into "a travesty, a mock trial," and that he (Walker) had not been accorded a fair trial.

EX-MAYOR MAY RUN AGAIN

Friends Say He Will Seek Vindication At Polls

Developments today in the wake of Mayor James J. Walker's resignation as chief executive of New York City were these:

1. Friends of the ex-Mayor believed he would seek vindication at the polls and run for re-election.
2. Gov. Roosevelt closed officially the hearing on the Seabury charges which culminated in the resignation. He made no comment on Walker's charges of unfairness.
3. Joseph V. McKee, former president of the Board of Aldermen, took over the office of Mayor.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Ex-Mayor James J. Walker will run for re-election at the forthcoming general election in November, it was strongly indicated today. Thus he will lose no time in seeking immediate vindication by the people of the charges directed at him and his administration by Samuel Seabury.

City Clerk Michael J. Cruise announced this afternoon that he expected to certify to the Board of Elections that a vacancy exists in the office of Mayor and that it shall be filled at the general election on November 8.

Walker will be a candidate to fill that "vacancy" of his own creation. He resigned at 10:20 o'clock last night, dramatically declaring he was not being accorded a fair "trial" at the removal hearing before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in Albany and announcing he would submit his case "to the supreme authority" —the people.

SMITH MENTIONED

The name of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith came into the political picture as discussions of Walker's action in resigning in the midst of an unprecedented civic upheaval waxed hot. Many independent Democrats were represented as hoping that Smith might run for Mayor of New York.

"Al" has heard this suggestion for months but has consistently refrained from showing any interest in this phase of the situation.

Never before, during the 267 years since the city's first Mayor, has a parallel existed to the situation which prevails in New York today.

City Clerk Cruise, a Tammany district leader, said he had no doubt about the course he will follow in certifying a vacancy in the

Jealous; Admits Killing Brother, Girl in Quarry

LIMA, O., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—One of the most baffling crimes in Ohio history, the "quarry murders" of Earl Truesdale, 20, and his sweetheart, Thelma Woods, 19, was solved today, police said, by the alleged confession of Loren Ellsworth Truesdale, Earl's 23-year-old brother.

Jealousy was described as the motive. Police said the elder brother, arrested last night, made the alleged confession in the presence of his parents.

Earl and Miss Woods were slain the evening of Memorial Day, 1931. Their bodies, weighted with stones, were found in a pool in an abandoned stone quarry several days later. Months of investigation failed to involve the brother until last night.

Loren's confession, officers said, told of meeting Earl and Miss Woods in downtown Lima the night of the crime. They bought liquor, the confession said, and then drove to the quarry.

The brothers argued about the girl, and Loren struck Earl on the head with a hammer, the confession said. Loren was quoted as saying:

"He had taken several girls away from me."

Loren said he left the younger brother dying and returned to the girl and told her what he had done. She threatened to report him, the confession said, and he struck her with the hammer. Then he told of sinking the bodies in the quarry pool. He said he had been prepared to confess if anyone else had been convicted.

Monongahela Bank Reopening Sought

A committee of depositors, headed by John E. Crawford, is working on a plan to reorganize the Monongahela National Bank, it was said today. The plan has not yet been presented officially to John W. Pole, Controller of the Currency, it was said. The bank was closed about 11 months ago.

Dempsey Appointed Nebraska 'Admiral'

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—When Jack Dempsey came to Omaha last week to fill a vaudeville engagement he was merely a former heavyweight boxing champion of the world. Now he's an admiral in the "Great Navy of the State of Nebraska."

Lieut. Gov. Theodore W. Metcalfe, of Omaha, custodian of the membership roll in the imaginary navy, conferred the new title upon Dempsey.

McKee in Walker's Job But Regrets Promotion

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Joseph V. McKee, erstwhile president of the Board of Aldermen, slipped unobtrusively into City Hall today, took off his coat, and began work as Mayor of the City of New York.

There was no ceremony, nor will there be, for his succession to James J. Walker, resigned, is automatic and not even the formality of taking an oath of office is necessary.

Although McKee took up the Mayor's work today he did not take over Walker's former office. Instead he went to the office he occupied as aldermanic president, a large white room decorated with the portraits of the former Mayor, and sat at his own old flat-topped desk. He said:

"I won't move into the Mayor's office until Tuesday at least."

He gave no reason for his delay. He added:

"I am exceedingly sorry about the Walker resignation, and I regret that I have been injected into this position under these particular circumstances."

JUDGE PONDERS INVESTIGATION OF UTILITIES

'Lame Duck' Jurist Sought to Head G. O. P. Inquiry

LONDON, Sept. 2—(AP.)—Judge Robert S. Gawthrop, appointed counsel for the State Senate Committee named to investigate the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission, sailed for home today aboard the Europa, undecided whether to accept the position.

Judge Gawthrop, a member of the State Superior Court and whose term expires in January, was believed to be returning to Pennsylvania to inquire into the situation before deciding.

COMMITTEE WAITS

HARRISBURG, Sept. 2—(AP.)—The Rial committee, named to investigate the Public Service Commission in its relation to state utilities, today was marking time awaiting the arrival of Judge Robert S. Gawthrop from London and his decision as to whether he will act as its counsel.

Gawthrop was designated yesterday by the committee in executive session here, but relatives and committee members were uncertain whether he will accept. His acceptance will require him to resign from the Superior Court, where he has served 11 years.

He is to retire from the court January 1, having lost the Republican renomination in the spring primary although he had the indorsement of both Pinchot and organization forces.

He was caught in the middle of a fight between the Delaware County and Allegheny County organizations, and furnished the surprise of the primary by losing out.

PINCHOT'S AID SOUGHT

Besides naming Gawthrop, the committee voted to ask Gov. Pinchot for his fullest co-operation to make the investigation a success. The Governor has repeatedly predicted that the organization-approved inquiry will be a failure and a whitewash of utilities.

The committee also decided to include in its record the proceedings of the Senate and House utility investigations of 1931, which came to naught, and the charges brought by Pinchot against William D. B. Ainey a month ago, which led the latter to resign the commission's chairmanship after 17 years' service. Pinchot charged he accepted utility favors.

Two Planes In Mid-Air Crash

Both pilots, hurled 50 feet to the ground, were taken to a hospital. The seriousness of their injuries could not be ascertained immediately.

Both planes were demolished.

OHIO STEEL RIOT INJURES 7

WARREN, O., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Fighting between police and a band of men picketing the Trumbull plant of the Republic Steel Corporation broke out late last night, and seven of the pickets were injured and jailed. Some of the pickets hurled stones and clubs, but were subdued quickly.

The pickets, sponsored by the Metal Workers' Industrial League, formed at the plant entrance yesterday and attempted without success to persuade 1,200 to 1,500 employes to strike. The league men claimed a wage reduction was to have been made effective yesterday.

The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, representing most of the employes, asserted there was no wage cut, and that they were working under a wage agreement which does not expire until next July 1. The association urged the men to stay on the job.

He made the statement in a letter to Representative James M. Beck (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, who as a wet attacked Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's recent Sea Girt, N. J., campaign speech.

SCORE INDICTED BY COUNTY PROBERS

Ex-Officials Named in Presentments Made By Grand Jury

primaries, 1931, Webster, Gross, Railey, Greenlee and Ina Wayne are charged with conspiracy in the wholesale purchase of tax receipts.

In its presentment the grand jury said:

"We began our investigation June 20 and have taken testimony of approximately 800 witnesses. We have further examined a large number of tax receipts, registration books, assessment books, and other papers and documents from the County Treasurer's office."

The grand jury, after explaining the system used in the County Treasurer's office to obtain tax receipts, continued:

"This system was doubtless inaugurated for the convenience of the Treasurer's office. But from the very nature of the system the door was open to enable fraudulent procuring of tax receipts with little difficulty.

ACCUSES LEAGUE

"In the Third Ward we find an organization known as the Third Ward Voters League, the chief activity of which must have been the procuring of tax receipts. One Clarence Webster was president of this club and there was an executive board consisting of James Gross, Walter Wainey, Gus Greenlee, Alfred J. Kiley and Ina Wayne.

"There seems to have been an unlawful conspiracy among the members of this club to secure tax receipts illegally."

"The policy of this organization seem to be a tax receipt for any person who could by any possibility register and vote. The said Ida Wayne procured from the Treasurer's office 2,657 tax receipts.

"In the Fourth Ward, Howard Neely was the person selected to pay the money into the Treasurer's office and receive the tax receipts.

"There seems to have been a number of cases in this ward in which there was real estate listed in the name of husband and wife and a separate assessment against each of them for the poll taxes. There were also cases in which real estate was assessed against an individual and a separate assessment against the same individual for poll tax. There was also in this ward (the Fourth) a number of orders filed with the County Treasurer which had not been signed by taxables and on which receipts were issued but not delivered to the persons in whose names issued. Under this system Mr. Neely paid for and had issued to him tax receipts in the number of 4,000."

HUNDREDS QUESTIONED

Hundreds of witnesses had been questioned before the grand jury in its double investigation into alleged County maladministration and tax receipt frauds, culminating in today's presentment.

Originating last January when the incoming Board of County Commissioners authorized an audit of County affairs under the preceding administration, the County end of the probe was taken over by Prosecutor Park in June and placed before the grand jury. In the six-month inquiry, $100,000 was spent.

Auditors, engaged by the Commissioners, and headed by M. C. Conick reported finding evidences of irregularities, principal of which centered in a 200,000 truck hire contract awarded by the former Board of Commissioners to Bowser. The auditors disclosed that while Bowser had received 60 cents a ton for hauling slag to the county airport, he paid sub-contractors only 20 cents for doing the work.

Bowser, summoned to testify before County Controller Robert G. Woodside, refused to reveal his dealings with the county on the slag hauling contract. Held in contempt and ordered to jail, the Kittanning contractor escaped actual commitment by appeal to court.

On June 27 Bowser won his court fight when Judges Ambrose B. Reid and W. Heber Dithrich ruled that Woodside was without authority to compel Bowser to disclose his transactions with the County. Judge Thomas M. Marshall, in a minority finding, held that Bowser should be compelled to reveal all details.

With doom of the inquiry as it affected Bowser, apparently sounded by the court decree, Prosecutor Park stepped into the picture and threw the whole inquiry into the grand jury, thereby opening the way to examination of Bowser himself as well as all records pertaining to the truck hire deal.

EMPLOYES GRILLED

Bowser subsequently appeared before the grand jury with all his books. Several of his employes also were questioned. Auditor Conick analyzed the records because of the complicated bookkeeping involved and presented his findings to the jurors.

Meanwhile the investigation, under the direction of the Commissioners, flared into new fields. Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank, taking charge, questioned scores of witnesses, many of them present or former county employes, as to alleged use of county gasoline by relatives and friends of county officials, reputed diversion of county labor and materials to private use; payroll juggling and inefficiency.

District Attorney Park assigned his assistant, Earl T. Adair, to sit in at these inquiries and finally took over the entire prosecution.

The June grand jury was held over during July and August to complete the investigation.

State Asks U. S. Relief Aid Again

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—A new request for $10,000,000 relief loans for the state of Pennsylvania was presented to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation today by W. B. Rodgers, state welfare director, and Mrs. Allen R. Liveright, executive director of the Emergency Relief Board of the state.

Some time ago the board refused to grant a loan to Pennsylvania on the grounds that the state had not done its part in providing funds for relief work. Since that time the Pennsylvania Legislature has acted.

Dry Law Informer Shot by Sniper

MORGAN CITY, La., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Felix Olivier, known to police as an informer for prohibition agents, came home from a political rally last night, turned on the light and was shot to death through an open window. His unidentified assailant, hiding at the edge of the house, used a shotgun that sent numerous slugs through Olivier's chest and lungs.

BOATS SEIZED, DOUGLAS ASKS U. S. PROBE

tion of the sand and gravel business in this district.

The City of Pittsburgh slapped attachments on Douglas' barges and material at the Sixth street wharf of the Allegheny River, for an alleged $13,000 debt.

The writ was quickly torn by a mysterious young fellow in a green sweater.

In seizing Douglas' property, Capt. Halfhill, of the towboat R. P. Winton, said the city also has seized his steamer.

DOUGLAS BOATS STAY

Douglas, who had been battling George S. Vang for possession of the city-owned wharf, apparently was the victor as his boats were moored at the landing. Director Edward G. Lang, of the Public Works Department, had failed to move them.

Today a deputy sheriff seized the said hoist, barges, tools and equipment and the steamer R. P. Winton, to satisfy $13,000 back rent which the city claims Douglas owes for an old lease on the Exposition Building.

Shortly after the notices were posted on the property, a young man in a green sweater tore one from the hoist and a similar notice on a barge also disappeared.

Deputy Sheriff P. J. McKenna went back and posted five sale notices—one each on two barges, one on the steamboat and two on the hoist.

He said:

"If these are torn down I'll have to move the equipment."

CHARGES CRIMINAL ACTS

Douglas was found in the Federal Building and revealed that he had asked for a grand jury investigation of the sand and gravel business. He said:

"Some of the sand and gravel transactions have been criminal, in restraint of trade and in violation of the Sherman act.

"Lang and Vang had threatened that if I did not remove equipment by noon today, they would do so by force. The levy today is the very thing needed to give me adequate relief at this time, as it places the equipment and material in the hands of the Sheriff. It makes the Sheriff my watchman."

Douglas said he had sent the letter to District Attorney Graham asking for an extraordinary session of the federal grand jury on Wednesday.

Graham said that he had written Douglas informing him that matters dealing with violations of the Sherman anti-trust act must be taken up with the Attorney General or Department of Justice at Washington.

Capt. Halfhill, owner of the Winton, said his boat had towed the barges to the landing, but that it is not owned or rented by Douglas.

BELL INDICTED FOR PERJURY

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 2.—Tony Bell, former Fayette County detective, tried and acquitted of the racket murder of Constable John F. Donohoe, and then the state's chief witness against former County Detective R. C. Bledsoe and Cosmo Stengoni, who were acquitted of the murder, was today indicted for perjury. Bell is now in the Federal Reform School at Chillicothe, O.

During his own trial, Bell denied that he took part in the killing, but at the Bledsoe-Stengoni trial admitted that he was one of four men in the murder plot, Judge S. John Morrow ordered his indictment.

Heat Is Blamed For Man's Death

Heat was blamed today for the death of Frank P. Graddick, 42, of 79 South Seventh street, rear, stricken while carrying coal up the steps along the Castle Shannon Incline. At South Side Hospital death was credited to rupture, induced by heat and strain.

Postal Clerk, Urging Bonus, Reinstated

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Postmaster General Brown announced following today's cabinet meeting with President Hoover that he intended to reinstate Ben H. Kerr as a postoffice clerk at Gary, Ind.

Kerr was dismissed, among other reasons, because he had introduced a bonus resolution at the Indiana American Legion meeting last March "contrary to the expressed wishes of the President, who considers such legislation harmful to the country at this time."

Brown said that in the ordinary course of events Kerr would have been discharged because of inadequacies in his work, but added:

"Since the bonus question has been made an issue in his case I intend to reinstate him."

Chairman Campbell, of the Civil Service Commission, ruled that discussion of the bonus was among the list of political questions tabooed for government employes and their families under new regulations which prohibit federal workers from engaging in controversial political discussions during the campaign.

Walker Out as Mayor, Probe Ordered Closed

Friends Say He Will Seek Vindication At Polls

Mayor's office to the Board of Elections.

However, in certain legal circles there prevails the belief that no vacancy exists and that Aldermanic President McKee, who automatically became Mayor upon Walker's resignation, will remain the city's chief executive until Walker's term expires December 31, 1933.

WILL TAKE VACATION

Ex-Mayor Walker slept late at his apartment in the Mayfair House. He planned to take a vacation trip soon to recuperate from the nervous strain which he has been under for a considerable time. He was represented by his intimate friends as "feeling happy and much relieved." He is now a private citizen after 23 years of public life.

Walker, in his statement explaining why he resigned, did not state in so many words that he was going to campaign this fall for re-election, but he clearly implied it. He bitterly attacked Gov. Roosevelt for his "un-American, unfair proceedings."

The ex-Mayor is suffering from low vitality and a weak heart, and his doctor advised him to obtain all the rest possible. His former physician, State Senator William L. Love, today expressed the opinion that Walker has sustained a severe shock to his nervous system and that his condition is below that of the time in 1923 when he collapsed. Love said he considered the ex-Mayor to be a victim of "acquaintances who pretended to be friends."

SEE COURT TEST

Legal experts voiced the opinion today that there will be a court test of the constitutionality of a mayoralty election on November 8. When City Clerk Cruise certifies to the Board of Elections that a vacancy exists in the Mayor's office, the board will ask the corporation counsel's office for an opinion on the legal points involved.

The consensus is that there is little doubt but that the corporation counsel will sustain Cruise and hold that a vacancy does exist.

Objections may be raised by outside civic agencies—such as the Committee of One Thousand, the Citizens' Union and the City Club—and they may seek a decision in the courts.

In a blistering statement accompanying his 17-word resignation, Mayor Walker flayed Gov. Roosevelt's conduct of the ouster hearing, declaring the proceedings "developed into a travesty, a mock trial." He charged that the Governor had "a personal interest in the outcome" and asserted that despite Mr. Roosevelt's declarations of fairness "he has been studiously unfair." Mayor Walker said:

"Yet I am not without a remedy. I can by my own act change the venue. I can change it to the supreme authority, the people themselves."

Day after day, during the course of the proceedings, "it became more and more apparent," said Walker, "that I was being subjected to an extraordinary inquisition." He said:

"I was not accorded even the elementary rights guaranteed to any defendant in a court of law."

Samuel Seabury, chief counsel of the Hofstadter committee, which conducted the investigation of Walker and Tammany Hall, took occasion to issue a sharp attack on the retiring Mayor. He said:

"The charges against the Mayor were fully proved and corroborated in many instances by the documentary evidence which was undisputed, and by the Mayor's admission."

Seabury seemed pleased at the news of Walker's resignation. He smoked a pipe contentedly as he gave the reporters his statement at his town house in East Sixty-third street.

Smith Shuns Talk On Walker's Action

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith was visiting on Long Island today and made no comment on the Walker resignation. His associates here said that he would have no statement to make.

From time to time suggestions have been made from various quarters that Smith might run for Mayor at the next election, but Smith has never taken official notice of such suggestions.

$100,000 JOB WAITS WALKER

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—If former Mayor Walker wants to abandon politics and take that $100,000-a-year job, it's still waiting for him.

His millionaire friend, A. C. Blumenthal, who recently made the offer, repeated it today at his Larchmont home where he hopes Walker will come to rest. Blumenthal said:

"The offer is still open, of course. I wish he'd take it; I'm ready for him any time.

"I'm afraid he won't take it, however. I believe he will run for re-election and will win by an overwhelming vote."

Mrs. Walker Learns Of Resignation Late

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Mrs. James J. Walker learned of the resignation of her husband as Mayor only today, although he officially announced his action late last night.

She was at that time visiting friends on Long Island and the Mayor's efforts to telephone the news to her proved fruitless.

Garner Stamps Himself As a True American

By BAINBRIDGE COLBY

A CAMPAIGN DOCUMENT of high value and importance, is the letter in which John N. Garner accepts the Democratic nomination for Vice President.

It has the breadth of a statesman, and the comprehensiveness of a survey, in dealing with the major problems of the day, which we naturally expect from one, who has served the nation so long and so ably, as has the present Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Forthrightness, clarity and the courage of mature and tested convictions mark it,—from beginning to end.

His references to the huge growth of bureaucracy in Washington "a structure of administration, vast beyond the imagination,—complex, involved and incoordinated; a fabric of bureaus, commissions, boards and departments that overlap and interfere one with the other, AND ALL AT THE COST OF THE PEOPLE," will have a mighty response from the tax-oppressed millions of Americans, who are clamoring for a simplification of government and relief from the intolerable weight of its expense.

REPUBLICAN RESPONSIBILITY for the unbalanced budget and the unchecked growth of our national deficit is driven home in simple and telling phrase.

The "highest tariff in the country's history," resulting in loss of trade, shut-down factories, unemployment, and a decline in the standard of living, naturally occupies a prominent place in Mr. Garner's arraignment of Republican misrule.

But it is in the passage of his letter dealing with debt-cancellation and prohibition, that the sturdy sanity and unequivocating utterance of this typical American is most agreeably revealed.

Here are burning issues. Weak men of the political stripe flee from them. Weasel words and balanced platitudes suffice for them.

BUT NOT FOR John Garner! He tells you where he stands.

"I OPPOSE CANCELLATION," says he, clearly and definitely.

This is exactly what one would expect of a clear-eyed American, who can readily see through the clumsy conspiracy of the international bankers, to line their purses at the expense of the American taxpayer, and without regard to the latter's rights, equities or interests.

On prohibition, says the Democratic vice presidential candidate, "WE STAND COMMITTED TO REPEAL," and he gives voice to the contempt which every right-thinking man feels for the panicky evasion and tortuous verbosity under which the Republican party sought cover on this vital question.

THE GARNER LETTER adds weight and dignity to the Democratic campaign. It is the expression of the mind that combines with a just conservatism of judgment a penetrating and vital sense of actualities.

It is American to the core, and in the true faith and tradition of liberal democracy.

M'KEE ONCE 'NEWSIE'

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(Universal.)—Joseph Vincent McKee, the new Mayor of the City of New York, is an Horatio Alger hero in real life. Newsboy to chief executive of the nation's greatest city is the chasm that has been bridged by Mayor Walker's successor.

He comes into office as Mayor of the metropolis at the age of but 43 years.

He has risen to his present high estate through successive stages as educator, lawyer, legislator, judge and president of the Board of Aldermen.

His father was the late John McKee, his mother the late Margaret Patterson McKee. Both were natives of Glasgow, Scotland. He is one of seven children born to the sturdy Scotch couple who emigrated to this country in their young married years.

While a member of the State Assembly, McKee, on November 26, 1918, married Miss Cornelia Kraft, who had spent her childhood in Manhattan and later moved to New Rochelle. Mrs. McKee, although now living in the Bronx, maintains her social contacts in New Rochelle.

German Paper Sees Walker 'Comeback'

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—"New York wouldn't be New York without Jimmy Walker. He'll come back."

This was the comment today of the Vossische Zeitung on the resignation of Mayor James J. Walker. All Berlin papers gave prominence to the story, recalling Walker's recent visit to the German capital.

Walker Fate Recalls Rise to World Fame

'Jimmy' Conceded Most Publicized Mayor

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(Universal.)—You can call him James Joseph Walker or James John Walker and be right either way because a priest at his baptism became confused and named him James John Joseph Walker. You can call him either James Joseph or James John, but when you think of him, it will be as:

Jimmy.

He has always been "Jimmy"—Jimmy Walker the song writer of tin pan alley; Jimmy Walker the young and, for him, silent assemblyman; Jimmy Walker the leader of the State Senate; and Jimmy Walker the Mayor of New York City. The man's personality, in this respect, is similar to that of former Gov. Smith, who always has been affectionately remembered as "Al."

WORLD FAME

Walker's fame is not merely local or national—it is international. He is undoubtedly the most widely publicized man in his position in the world. He is, among other things, a commander of the French Legion of Honor, commendatore of the Order of Saints Maurice and Lazarous of Italy, commander of the Order of Ysabella la Catolica of Spain and of the Star of Rumania, honorary member of the Miami Fife and Drum Corps, and Chief A-Ka-Ki-To-Pip of the Blackfeet Indians—and product of Manhattan's Lower West Side.

While a young man Walker's father became an alderman and when Walker was seven the family moved to 6 St. Luke's place, on the edge of what is now known as the Village. This house, with its twin lamps outside the door, is now owned by Walker although he lives most of the time in his suite in the Mayfair.

ENTERS POLITICS

It seemed natural, then, that the young Walker should gravitate toward politics, although it is reported that as a youngster, he decided he would like to be a doctor or a dentist. His brother, William, became the doctor in the family.

Walker turned to politics and in 1910 was elected to the Assembly.

He arrived in Albany a young, dapper but as yet inconspicuous man—just another member of the Tammany delegation. For the next four years he remained unobtrusive, with little to say on the floor of the House and holding minor posts on a few unimportant committees. The Walker start had just commenced its ascendancy.

In 1915 he was elected to the Senate in the Twelfth District. Here the innate character of Walker began to manifest itself. He was a liberalist — what else could Walker be? — and his wit and ability to penetrate at once to the core of a situation won him increasing attention.

BOXING LAW

The bill that probably made him most famous in this state was the Walker boxing law. The bill revised boxing bouts limited to 15 rounds with decisions, after the sport had been prohibited in the state for several years.

For the five years from 1920 to 1925, Walker was the majority leader of the Senate. He was friendly with Gov. Smith, fighting vigorously against Republican attacks on bills Smith wanted put through. And so it was but natural that Smith should sponsor Walker to run for mayor of New York city in 1925.

In the primary election, Walker defeated Hylan with ease. He rode roughshod oved his Republican opponent, Frank L. Waterman, the fountain pen manufacturer, by a plurality of 365,000. Here, at last, had "Jimmy" really arrived. Here began the fame which was to make of him an international figure and which, eventually, was to bring him into the international spotlight in the Seabury investigation.

In 1929 Walker ran again for mayor. He was opposed this time by the fiery Fiorello H. La Guardia, representative at Congress, and defeated him.

Wisecracks Win Broadway for Walker

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—It's "Jimmy, ol' boy, ol' boy" when they speak of His Honor, the Mayor, on Broadway, and there he finds a permanent "welcome" mat of incandescent lights.

The dapper, wisecracking Walker has the soul of an actor, and it was for these canny talents of his to stage an effective entrance and always to ad lib with the appropriate retort that Broadway recognized him as one of its native sons.

From the Bohemian surroundings of Greenwich Village, Walker naturally drifted to the lane of bright lights, and more particularly to Tin Pan Alley. His song-writing career was a fairly impressive one, although it irks him when he enters a night club and the orchestra strikes up his best known song, "Will You Love Me in December As You Did in May?"

NORMAN'S VISIT SCORED AS PLAN TO AID HOOVER

Universal Service.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—Assailing Montagu Norman's activities in the United States as a violation of the Lausanne "gentlemen's agreement," which France interpreted as forming a solid front of debtor nations against America, Figaro, in a front-page editorial calls on Premier Herriot to protect France from being sacrificed to Hoover's campaign for re-election.

Figaro recalls that the Hearst newspapers originally denounced the "gentlemen's agreement" as an "intolerable attempt" by the world's financial leaders to achieve their ends at the expense of the American taxpayer.

HERRIOT VIEW VIOLATED

The governor of the Bank of England's mysterious doings in the United States are attacked as violations of Premier Herriot's interpretation of the significance of the "gentlemen's agreement," although they are declared to coincide with the interpretation made by Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain. The editorial follows:

New York cablegrams do not conceal from us that the visit to the United States by Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, has for its object the negotiation of a new debt agreement. But no cablegram from New York or London, nor any communique from Paris, tells us that the basis of this negotiation has been previously agreed upon by Messrs. MacDonald and Herriot.

ASSURED COMMON FRONT

Meanwhile, it is not yet two months since a great deal was made of a certain gentlemen's agreement which subordinated ratification of the Lausanne accord (settling Germany's reparations at 1 cent on the dollar) to a satisfactory settlement of war debts with the Americans, and which we were assured constituted a common front of debtors.

A common front presupposing common action, we were strengthened in the belief that nobody would ride alone, above all in the country of the Knights of St. George, whence came to us the word gentleman and everything this word represents.

Alexander Dumas, that skeptic of women who was inclined to deny women certain virtues, once said: "Honor is man's affair." It is above all a gentleman's affair and this affair means before everything to keep one's word. This word has undoubtedly been employed to distinguish the arrangement it ornaments from most solemn treaties—that is to say, those arrangements, which, involving only the honor of nations, are but scraps of paper.

INANITY NOT EQUALED

At least, in equaling the dignity of these latter, the gentlemen's agreement does not equal their inanity. This second hypothesis would appear most apparent in the light of Montagu Norman's voyage.

We should recognize that England's separate negotiations with the United States conform, if not with the interpretation of the gentlemen's agreement by M. Herriot, at least with that of Mr. MacDonald.

When the accord became known it was greeted by an explosion of fury in the United States. The Hearst newspapers denounced it as an intolerable attempt at hegemony "by financiers who rule the world."

The chief of the Republicans in the Senate at Washington, Mr. Watson, cried:

"I cannot believe such a club ought to be brandished against the United States."

CONTRADICTS HERRIOT

The club not being a gentleman's weapon, Mr. MacDonald hastened to reassure America. The accord was only a light switch, and, even if one dared say it, a simple jest. It wasn't serious.

As a result, the declaration made in the House of Commons by Mr. MacDonald on July 12, last, was a flagrant contradiction of those of Monsieur Herriot. Nothing could have been more gentlemanly.

There is, in effect, a hierarchy of duties and the true gentleman recognizes that precedence is to be given the most serious. There is reason to believe that before promising Monsieur Herriot to reach agreement with him on the debt question, Mr. MacDonald promised the contrary to America. Now he is more strictly bound by the promise which was the first chronologically and the more sacred as having been made to a member of the family. It is first among Anglo-Saxons that one should be a gentleman.

ACCORD PUBLISHED

Moreover, on July 30, the day following that on which Mr. MacDonald demonstrated to Commons that the gentlemen's agreement should not inspire in us any confidence, there was published the accord of confidence which he had signed with Monsieur Herriot.

In this he conducted himself as a gentleman—at least with the United States and with Germany—with the United States because he said the accord affected the "European regime," leaving it to be concluded thereby that debts are excluded therefrom; with Germany because in an insidious manner the Franco-British accord of confidence is an encouragement to the Reich's rearmament.

HOOVER SCORED

As for Mr. Hoover, after having invited the European nations to agree among themselves so as to facilitate agreement with the United States, he even raised himself against an appearance of agreement, and, after having forced us by his moratorium to abandon the reparations which had been solemnly promised us by his predecessor, Wilson, he takes no account of our sacrifice; or rather he recompenses us by trading debts against our military and economic disarmament which would open France to the invasion of German armies and, in the meanwhile, to an invasion of American products.

This is possibly how a gentleman conducts himself before his voters. We beg our government not to sacrifice the French citizen to the American voter and to be just a little bit of a gentleman with its own voters by paying just a little attention to the promises it made them.

over Montagu Norman's secret conferences with government leaders. The Kansan is chairman of the Naval Appropriations Subcommittee of the House. He concurred in Wood's views that a drive is on to extend the Hoover moratorium or bring about cancellation, and added:

"I voted against ratification of the Hoover moratorium. I refused to pledge myself to the proposition when the President polled members of Congress by telegraph.

"I am opposed to doing anything about a further moratorium or a reduction in any of these debts until Europe does something about slashing her armaments."

FRANCE APPREHENSIVE

At the same time it was learned that France and other debtors have become fearful that Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, had prepared the ground in his secret conferences with international bankers and government officials for a preferred status for Great Britain.

Paris was described as being not at all impressed by the assertions in London, New York and Washington that Norman was in this country solely for his health, and is preparing to demand negotiations for drastic reduction or cancellation of her own debt paralleling those to start soon between Secretary of State Stimson and Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador.

GLASS SUSPICIOUS

Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, often called the "father of the Federal Reserve System" let it be known clearly at Lynchburg, Va., that he was suspicious of the moves being made in Norman's secret conferences. Glass said:

"I would not be willing publicly to conjecture what Montagu Norman's mission is to this country but I would be willing to suspect that he is here to help run the New York Federal Reserve Bank in certain European interests."

NORMAN LEAVES BAR HARBOR

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The closely guarded visit to America of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, under the name of "Prof. Clarence Skinner," apparently was drawing to a close today.

Just as mysteriously as ever, the British financier who flitted from the home of his hostess, Mrs. John Markoe, in Bar Harbor, Me., to Washington, New York, and perhaps other cities, for secret conferences with this country's leading bankers, dropped from sight yesterday afternoon.

The only information forthcoming from Mrs. Markoe's guarded estate was that Norman left yesterday afternoon "by motor part of the way."

It is believed he drove to Ellsworth, Me., and there boarded a train for Boston, Quebec, Montreal, or possibly new York. Quebec appeared the most likely for it is from that city that the Canadian-Pacific liner Empress of Britain is sailing for England tomorrow.

Usually reservations on the Canadian-Pacific line are made through Boston. There yesterday is was said neither Montagu Norman nor "Prof. Skinner" had booked passage.

Observers pointed out, however, that he might have used any name.

Local steamship lines also said no reservations had been made for the banker and that the Federal Reserve Bank had booked passage for no one. It was learned the Federal Reserve Bank has, on Norman's previous visits here, arranged for his passage home.

TRUNK SLAYER CHARGES COURT ERRORS

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Counsel for Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, under sentence to be hanged for the murder of Mrs. Agnes Ann Leroi, filed briefs in the Supreme Court late yesterday alleging 12 errors by the trial court.

Two major points of attack were presented. One deals with the interpretation of the term legal insanity, the other with the failure of the trial court to give an instruction to the jury on self-defense as an excuse for killing.

Mrs. Judd's attorneys contend this is the first time the Supreme Court of Arizona has been asked to pass on the question of legal insanity and to define the term.

They declare the story related by Mrs. Judd in the letter to her husband, Dr. W. C. Judd, found in a drain pipe in a Los Angeles department store during the search for her, was sufficient to constitute a reason for instructing the jury on self-defense and that the trial court erred in failing to do so. The letter related a purported fight between Mrs. Judd, Mrs. Leroi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson, who also was killed.

In the brief the counsel admitted there was no self-defense evidence in the record of the case, but holds the letter which had been introduced by the state was sufficient to require instruction on that point.

Peggy Rich Awarded Only $60 Alimony

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Although she had asked for $500 weekly temporary alimony and $7,500 counsel fees pending her separation suit trial, Peggy Rich, former Ziegfeld showgirl, today had been awarded $60 a week and $500 counsel fees by Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Rosenman.

Her husband is Freddie Rich, musical director. When applying for alimony, Mrs. Rich denied her husband's charges a raid on a hotel disclosed her with John L. Deruyter, society man.

Trial of Alleged Wife Slayer Delayed

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—At the request of the state's attorney's office the trial of Dr. William A. O'Brien, charged with the slaying of his wife, Vera, by poison, has been continued until September 30. The action was taken when the case was called yesterday. The prosecutor informed the court more time was desired for investigation.

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 2.—Joseph Holegra is dead today from a fractured skull suffered when hit on the head with a shovel in a fight last night. Police are holding J. E. Pinich, 26, Holegra's alleged antagonist.

COURT GRANTS 6 PADLOCKS

Preliminary injunctions were granted in Federal Court against six places, one in Pittsburgh, named in bills of complaints filed by prohibition authorities. Final hearings will be held December 13.

The places and alleged proprietors were described as follows: Speakeasy, first floor, 6315 Broad street, Sam Fagadow; store and drinking rooms, 275 Schoonmaker avenue, Monessen, Wasil and Anna Kuzms; speakeasy, second floor, 400 block Donner avenue, Monessen, P. G. Reilly; store, first floor, 533 East Otterman street, Greensburg, George Joseph; barroom, 410 Division street, Jeannette, Charles Dilorenzo, and store and drinking rooms, first floor, 513 Cavitt avenue, Trafford City.

FIRTH STEEL TO BUILD

Plans for immediate erection of a new plant building were announced today by the Firth-Sterling Steel Company. About 50 skilled workmen will be employed in the manufacture of drill rods, needle wire, precision ground rods and stainless steel cold finished products.

The company plans to move workmen and equipment from Sharpsburg, where it operates a branch under the name of the Globe Wiring Company. There was no announcement of plans for the Sharpsburg plant.

The new building will be erected opposite the Demmler Station of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

500 MINES QUIT IN STATE

Five hundred and twelve bituminous coal mines were abandoned in Pennsylvania during 1927 to 1931, inclusive, according to the State Department of Mines. Mines now available for operation total 1,528.

The abandoned mines produced 12,000,000 tons and employed 23,000, according to reports to the department based on the last year of operation of each of the mines.

Abandonment of operations was attributed in some instances to exhaustion of coal, but largely resulted from business conditions which made operation unprofitable, the department's survey revealed.

HOOVER SWINGS INTO LEAD IN N.Y. POLL

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—New York state today swung into the Hoover column while Gov. Roosevelt increased his lead in the grain belt states of the Middle West.

These were the outstanding developments in the tabulation of 7,589 additional ballots in the nationwide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

BOOSTS ELECTORAL VOTE

Addition of 404 new ballots from the Rochester-Buffalo section of Western New York, which gave President Hoover almost a three-to-one advantage, wiped out the Roosevelt majority of 163 and turned it into a Hoover majority of 19 for the state as a whole. New York now stands 6,049 for Hoover to 6,030 for Roosevelt.

By this swing of New York Hoover's potential electoral vote was increased from 76 to 123 and Roosevelt's dropped from 455 to 408.

The eight grain belt states, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas, all of which except Kansas, from the outset of this poll have consistently shown majorities for Roosevelt, with today's returns increased those majorities in each instance. Missouri took the lead with a 409 additional majority, with Minnesota adding 290, Wisconsin 217, Nebraska 116, South Dakota 42, North Dakota 35, and Iowa 15 to the Roosevelt leads. Kansas increased the Hoover majority of 43 to 54.

G. O. P. FACES TASK

It was only in Iowa that Hoover showed signs of checking the Roosevelt advance in the corn belt. However, Roosevelt still has a 359 majority with 3,077 ballots tabulated in that state.

In Wisconsin the Roosevelt majority now is 124 more than the total Hoover vote, with 4,599 ballots on record. In Missouri, with 5,237 votes tabulated, the Roosevelt majority of 1,223 is approximately two-thirds the total Hoover vote. South Dakota gives Roosevelt a majority one-third greater than Hoover's vote in the state. The Nebraska majority approaches equality with the Hoover total. Minnesota is not so very far behind.

From these returns it appears that with the turn of the campaign into September the Hoover forces will have some real work ahead if they break down the mounting sweep of the West to the Democratic nominee.

Presidential Trend by States

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart. The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

U. S. BANS POLL MAIL MEDDLING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(Universal.)—Warning to all postmasters and postal service employes against any interference with election poll ballots or straw votes going through the mails today had been issued by the Postoffice Department. The warning, published in the official daily bulletin of the department.

This action followed complaints of apparent tampering with post card ballots in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Hearst newspapers.

In the tabulating of the thousands of cards reaching the national poll headquarters daily, all ballots are scrutinized so carefully that any irregularities are detected and reported immediately to the postoffice officials.

CORN BELT KEY TO CAMPAIGN VICTORY

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The corn belt country of the Middle-west appears to hold the key to the 1932 Presidential election as the campaign moves into September.

This is the deduction to be drawn from a careful study of the returns thus far tabulated in the nation-wide Presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

If Gov. Roosevelt should maintain for the next two months the advantage he now holds in that area, and at the same time retain his present firm grip on the Pacific Coast states, there could be little if any question as to the election outcome.

Additional returns recorded today from the eight states of the corn country in every instance, save Kansas, showed additional gains for Roosevelt. Kansas, the home of Vice President Curtis, from the outset of the poll has been on the Hoover side. Hoover's hold on Kansas, however, is still so small that it would not be surprising if that state should swing over at any time to Roosevelt.

A study of the returns from these states presents some rather startling conditions. Wisconsin and South Dakota, the poll shows, are giving Roosevelt majorities larger than Hoover's total vote. Nebraska shows a Roosevelt majority that with another week's returns may equal the Hoover total. Minnesota and Missouri show Roosevelt running better than three to two over Hoover. North Dakota and Iowa, though not as strongly for Roosevelt as the others, nevertheless show him well out in front.

The returns of the poll to date do not give Hoover a look in on any state south of Pennsylvania or south of the Ohio River. At this time Roosevelt appears to have Illinois by a substantial margin of safety.

If Hoover gets every state east of Illinois and north of the Ohio and the Maryland-Pennsylvania boundary, he would have an even 200 electoral votes. The returns indicate he has a chance to swing that block.

Should he hold Kansas and get all the eight states of the Far West mountain region he would still have but 239 and be 27 short of the 266 necessary to elect. It is doubtful, however, that he can make such a sweep of the mountains, since up to this time not a single state in that region has swung over to him.

The returns indicate California and Washington definitely lost to Hoover unless there is a tremendous change before November. Oregon might switch over but it has only five electoral votes which still would leave Hoover 22 short. For Hoover to win, those 22 votes must come out of the corn-belt. They do not appear in his grasp at this stage of the campaign.

TEXT OF WALKER STATEMENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Mayor Walker's statement in full regarding his resignation follows:

A letter from my counsel, Mr. John J. Curtin, received today, has caused me to make a momentous decision. That is whether or not I shall refuse to go again to Albany to further subject myself an an un-American, unfair proceeding conducted by Gov. Roosevelt against me.

Three weeks ago I went to Albany with my counsel confident that we would be accorded a fair hearing, conducted in accordance with the rules established under our principles of government.

My counsel, Mr. Curtin, demanded at the opening of the hearing that the Governor summon those witnesses upon whose testimony Mr. Seabury or the Governor based the so-called charges against me, in order that I might face them and that my counsel might have an opportunity to cross-examine them.

Request Denied

This was denied by the Governor. At no time was Mr. Seabury even called upon by the Governor to name those witnesses, much less to summon them. As soon as this ruling was made I protested, but without avail.

Day after day during the course of the proceeding it became more and more apparent that I was being subjected to an extraordinary inquisition.

I was not accorded even the elementary rights guaranteed to any defendant in a court of law. Instead of an impartial hearing, the proceeding before the Governor developed into a travesty, a mock trial, a proceeding in comparison to which even the practice of a drum-head court-martial seemed liberal.

Upon my counsel's insistence, the conduct of this proceeding was submitted to the Supreme Court in order that the validity of the objections of my counsel might be impartially adjudicated. The court decided on Monday of this week that the Governor proceeded in excess of jurisdiction and without warrant of law:

(1) By denying me the right to which I am entitled under the constitution and the law to confront accusing witnesses and cross-examine them and by his treating accusations as self-proven without supporting evidence.

'No Jurisdiction'

(2) By considering as charges, upon which he might act adversely, a group of accusations, more than two-thirds of the total number of charges, involving no wrongdoing in fact, and which concerned alleged incidents occurring prior to my second election, over which he has no jurisdiction under the constitution, the statutes, the decisions of the courts, and the rulings of prior executives, including Governors Charles E. Hughes, David B. Hill and Theodore Roosevelt.

(3) By considering as charges, upon which he might act adversely, certain incidents involving no element of wrongdoing on my part, relating not only to my official conduct but to my private affairs and the private affairs of others having no official relation with the city of New York.

The Supreme Court also held that it was without power to restrain the Governor or prevent the invasion by him of my legal rights, which legal rights have been accorded without hesitancy by all prior governors when requested by officials under scrutiny.

The Supreme Court says that this lack of power results from the Governor invoking a technicality—by making a 'special appearance' and refusing to yield jurisdiction to the courts.

The court says this leaves me at the mercy of the Governor and his avowed determination to subject me to an unlawful and unconstitutional exercise of power—a perversion of executive power—a usurpation of power without color of authority under any satutory or constitutional provision or any judicial or executive decision, all this in order that he may accomplish a wrongful and unlawful end.

I am told that the governors of numerous states, and even in England, the King yielded to the courts in order that no one may suffer from an unjust or illegal act of the executive or the crown.

'Unlawful Acts'

I am also told that, so far as the courts are concerned at present, I must submit to being outraged by the unlawful acts of the Governor. I did not believe that in this day and age any man in this country would assert the right to act above the law, to exercise arbitrary and unlawful power, while conceding he did not in law possess arbitrary power.

The Governor announced he would not yield jurisdiction to the courts, which might restrain him from doing illegal acts leveled at me, unlawful under long-settled prior decisions, even before the pronouncement of Justice Staley.

The Governor has announced that he will persist in his illegal course. He has so announced at a time when I am informed that if the rights which he denies to me were accorded, the alleged charges would have to be dismissed. But I am told that I am without remedy at the present time in the courts because the Governor asserts and stands on an immunity from the process of the courts which has not been asserted, even in England, since the time of George III, whose assertions of arbitrary power provoked the American Revolutionary War.

I am told that I am without remedy at the present time in the courts although the conceded and substantial unlawful invasion of my rights is due to a Governor who has a personal interest in the outcome of the pending proceeding of a character which would disqualify a judge acting in a corresponding capacity on the ground of bias.

'Lawless Purpose'

This indefensible and lawless purpose of the Governor has revealed itself throughout the hearing. He has not called upon the accusers, particularly Mr. Seabury, to produce any supporting proof. Despite declarations of fairness, he has been studiously unfair. He has acted as a prosecutor, although the law requires that he be coldly neutral to both accuser and accused and that he be an impartial judge.

He has engaged in a three-cornered, futile cross-examination of my witnesses. He has exhibited discomfiture and displeasure as the unproven charges have been disproved under his eyes by uncontradicted testimony. The burden of proof of my innocence has been cast upon me by the Governor's unlawful precedure.

He has denied me access to the record of the testimony taken in private hearings by Mr. Seabury, which record was paid for by public money and would be further disproof of the charges which he is prosecuting. He denied me until a day or two ago the work sheets used by Mr. Seabury to build up a false structure of bank and stock accounts with which I have no interest or knowledge, responsibility of accountability, but which under the unlawful procedure of the Governor I am called upon to have analyzed and to furnish proof that I have no concern or connection with the various items in those accounts.

This he has done, although time out of memory the burden rests on the one making an assertion to prove it. He has allowed questions to be propounded and required questions to be answered that even a first-year law student would recognize were not permissible and without probative or binding force upon me.

While the Supreme Court has said, despite these unlawful acts and excess of jurisdiction on the part of the Governor, that I can get no present relief because the Governor hides behind the technical immunity plea, yet I am not without a remedy.

Case to People

I can by my own act change the venue. I can change it to the supreme authority, the people themselves.

I can change the place of trial so as to take it away from a biased judge acting illegally and in an avowed usurpation of power, with a personal interest in the outcome that disqualifies him as a matter of common decency from acting as a judge in the matter. Mr. Curtin's letter shows that not a shred of justification exists for the refusal of the Governor to dismiss the charges. Apart from that it appears:

(1) Not one witness has testified that any act of mine, either of commission or omission, was influenced by any improper, illegal or dishonest consideration.

(2) Not one witness has testified that I either sought or received any money, or anything, as a consideration for any official act of mine.

(3) Not one witness has testified that I have ever done anything, either by malfeasance, misfeasance or nonfeasance, injuriously affecting the city of New York or its citizens.

(4) Not one witness has testified that I have caused the wrongful expenditure or the loss of a single dollar to the people of the city of New York, although upwards of five billions of dollars have been expended during my administration as Mayor.

This uncontradicted record stands despite the expenditure of $750,000 devoted exclusively to a man hunt unsuccessfully pursued to find some means of destroying me.

In addition, another $100,000 of public funds will have to be provided to defray the expenses of the hearing ordered by the Governor—a high price for a mock trial.

Under these circumstances the question which I am faced with is: Shall I permit myself to be lynched to satisfy prejudice or political ambition?

I feel if I further submit that I would demean myself as well as the citizens of New York who have twice honored me by electing me Mayor by overwhelming majorities because the verdict, whether for or against me, would not be on the merits but dictated by political expediency.

Disproved Charges

I have gone as far as anyone could to prove my willingness to answer questions about every act in my life. I have met my accusers and disproved their charges. I have met Mr. Seabury and answered his every question. I have met the Governor and answered his every question. Both exhausted themselves in examining me and told me they had no more questions to ask.

I have not been given an opportunity to prove my record of service to the city as its Mayor for two terms, a record of which I am proud, a record which was acclaimed by the whole city, nor will I be granted such an opportunity from the Governor. That is apparent.

Why then continue before him when there is another forum open to me? To that forum, the people of the city of New York, I leave my case in the spirit of true democracy, conscious of the rectitude of my official acts and with a faith in the fair judgment of my fellow citizens.

I am not trying to avoid responsibility. I am incurring it by submitting my case to the people who made me Mayor, the people of the city of New York. To this decision I have been urged by the most loyal and distinguished Democrats in the country.

First Mayor of N. Y. To Quit Under Fire

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Mayor James J. Walker is the first chief executive of New York City to resign with charges pending against him.

Four other Mayors resigned their office for various other reasons.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Maytair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

One of Pittsburgh's granddaughters is being married today, with her pretty cousin, petite, brown-haired Virginia Oliver Doyle, of Sewickley, as one of the bouquet of bridesmaids.

Of course, you've concluded I'm talking about Mildred Ross, who has visited her often. She's the daughter of Mrs. John H. Ross, of Madison, N. J., and a granddaughter of David B. Oliver, of Sewickley.

She is to become the bride of Theodore Eckfeldt, son of Frank C. Eckfeldt, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Grace Church, Madison.

Unable to Attend

I had thought that the Marchese and Marchesa Dusmet, of Rome, who are in Sewickley visiting the Marchesa's mother, Mrs. James B. Oliver, and sister, Mrs. William J. Crittenden, might attend with Mrs. Oliver, but none of them will be able to.

The bride who will be given in marriage by her brother, David Ross, will wear the traditional bridal costume of white satin with a veil of old rose point lace, and will carry calla lilies.

Sally Ross, as her sister's maid of honor, will be in old rose crepe with a hat to match. And Virginia Doyle, one of the eight bridesmaids, all to be dressed alike, will be in periwinkle blue. All will have bouquets of garden flowers.

The father of the bridegroom will be best man.

If the weather permits, there'll be a reception in the beautifully landscaped garden of the Ross home. If it should rain the affair will be in the home.

Attend Wedding

The Charles S. Shoemakers, uncle and aunt of the bride, went over from Easthampton today for the ceremony, accompanied by their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Carnes Weeks, and their son and daughter-in-law, the David Shoemakers, of New York.

The Henry Olivers, Charles Oliver and Rebecca Doyle, Virginia's older sister, Nancy, her younger sister, and the Charles L. Doyles, their parents, are at the wedding. And Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Jr., too.

After a wedding trip, the young Eckfeldts will live in Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia's Sewickley.

Among the folks entertaining house guests are Peggy Colbert, who has Mary Davis, of Washington, Pa., visiting her; and Jane Campbell, of New York, is the guest of young Peggy Niedringhause. The hostesses and their guests have been spending much of their time at the Pittsburgh Field Club, with the swimming pool as the leading attraction.

FAVORED COAT-DRESS GIVEN NEW TREATMENT BY DESIGNERS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The new coat-dresses in Paris look more like coats than ever. Some of them may actually be worn over light silk dresses and are made of materials that lend themselves to use as coats. Some of them are, however, strictly in the dress manner, as far as fit and material are concerned, but keep to coat lines as to cut.

* * *

THE CURRENT favorites are those which are easily fastened. A single button to undo, or perhaps two, a tightly fitting belt—and one of these dresses is off in a jiffy. They require no added warmth of a coat to be taken on or off in restaurants, and leave a busy woman with extra time which she would ordinarily occupy with her clothes.

* * *

BRUYERE IS one of the French designers who has studied this coat-dress idea thoroughly. Her costumes of this type follow carefully the lines of her coats—loose full sleeves with big arm-eyes that allow for the ultimate of movement; back portions cut with plaits and tucks to mark well the curves of the body; and well-crossed front fastenings that do not easily flap open in walking.

* * *

HER COAT-DRESS in today's sketch is of this type—made of a light-weight woolen known as moussia, in black. There is a single button fastening at the square neckline and a leather belt. A detachable scarf of black lapin trimmed with white lapin furthers the coat effect.

* * *

THE SKETCH also shows a broad-brimmed version of the Bruyere creased-crown hat—this time in bright green felt, trimmed with silver and white buttons.

Protest Mrs. Sabin's Roosevelt Indorsement

Group of Anti-Drys Opposes Action Of Head

Action of Mrs. Charles Sabin, national chairman, Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, and representatives of the group in indorsing Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for president and Speaker John Garner for vice president, was protested today by local leaders of the organization in a letter sent to Mrs. Sabin.

The letter, signed by all the officers and members of the advisory committee of the local group, except the co-presidents, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., and Mrs. Cyrus R. Miller, disapproved the action as being "premature, ill advised, and not in the interest of prohibition reform." The organization has 19,000 members in Allegheny County.

In concluding, the letter announced that the local group, nounced that the local group would support President Hoover as the man "best fit to accomplish the end for which we have been striving."

The letter:

"Dear Mrs. Sabin:

"In view of the action taken by you, as national chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, and the representatives of that organization who were able to attend the meeting called by you in New York on July 7, 1932, endorsing Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for President and Speaker John N. Garner for Vice President, we the undersigned, a group of Pennsylvania members of the above organization, rather than resign from the organization with whose aims we are in complete accord and sympathy, wish to voice our protest and disapproval of your action as premature, ill advised and not in the interest of real prohibition reform.

"It was premature and ill advised because the members of the organization were urged to support the Democratic candidates before President Hoover had made clear his stand on Prohibition in his speech of acceptance; it was not in the interest of real Prohibition Reform, because, as the country stands, we could not hope to gain the support of the moderate dry element without a Federal guarantee against the return of the saloon such as proposed by President Hoover.

"Our slogan, 'Repeal', has for us a practical rather than a literal meaning and we are not willing to sacrifice the certainty of immediate Prohibition Reform to the impossibility of unconditional repeal.

"We, therefore announce our support of President Hoover as the best man fitted to accomplish the end for which we have been striving."

Mrs. Sabin today, in New York, said she had not yet received the protest and could not comment. Mrs. Miller said that the protest did not constitute a split in the local organization. She pointed out that the executive committee of the national organization, of which she is the only member from this county, met in July and passed the resolution indorsing the Democratic platform, and urging the members to vote for Roosevelt. She declared:

"I personally believe that the Democratic platform would better serve to give unqualified repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. At no time did our executive committee either pledge or commit our membership to support Mr. Roosevelt. Therefore, it is the prerogative of each member to vote as he sees fit."

The organization has 19,000 members in Allegheny County. Its entire membership will continue to work in accord on all other candidates except President.

The protest to Mrs. Sabin was signed by the following officers:

Vice chairmen, Mrs. Winfield K. Shiras, Mrs. Harry J. Miller, Mrs. J. G. Pontefract, Mrs. Francis A. Keating.

Chairman finance committee, Mrs. George M. Laughlin III.

Treasurer, Mrs. Joseph Dilworth.

Recording secretary, Mrs. Sherman Parker.

The protest also bore these signatures:

POLICE CHIEF HELD IN GIRL'S KIDNAPING

CHARLES CITY, Ia., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Chief of Police Don Shannon and Police Officer Harvey Meinzer were arrested today on charges of conspiracy in connection with the recent abduction of Miss Marian Stull, Floyd County overseer of the poor.

The charges were brought by State Agent H. Yackey, who conducted an inquiry into the abduction. It was alleged that Shannon and Meinzer knew about the kidnaping but made no effort to prevent it.

They were suspended from the police department by Mayor C. G. Gray. Bonds of $1,000 were furnished for their release.

Miss Stull was abducted from her office by a group of men who had been working on unemployment relief projects. Their action supposedly resulted from dissatisfaction at wages they were receiving.

She was taken to a point near New Hampton where she was released with a warning to stay out of Charles City. Several of the men involved in the abduction have been arrested.

SWISSVALE RAID TRAPS FIVE

Charged with violating the liquor laws, five Swissvale residents were to be arraigned tonight before Justice of the Peace S. H. Willson, of Swissvale, following their arrest last night when the borough officers conducted five raids in Burton street.

According to police they are Angelo Vereona, 7328 Burton street; Carl Marzula, 7330 Burton street; Samuel Kesara, 7319 Burton street; John Dominico, Burton and Collingswood streets, and Sam Zerro, 7320 Burton street. Whisky was reported seized in all the places.

Federal prohibition agents entered one of the places to stage a raid while the Swissvale officers were there, it was reported.

Pittsburgher Freed In Automobile Death

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Sept. 2.—E. H. Theakston, of 5014 Liberty avenue, Pittsburgh, was released pending an inquest by Coroner H. C. McCarter into the death of John Wilds, 9, of Eastvale, run down by an auto. Theakston told police the boy dashed out into the street on a scooter-bike.

KRENN TAXES SOUGHT BY U. S.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The government interested itself today in the real estate earnings of Edwin D. Krenn and Edward S. Date as they invested the millions advanced to them by the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick.

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green instructed agents of the Internal Revenue Department here to check for payment of income taxes by Krenn and Dato since 1932, the year after Krenn came here from Switzerland with John D. Rockefeller's daughter.

Green expressed particular curiosity about taxes on $1,250,000 which, according to attorneys for Mrs. McCormick, Krenn lent to her in 1929. Her counsel has said it was that act of friendship which most influenced Mrs. McCormick to bequeath five-twelfths of her estate to Krenn. He in turn signed it over to Dato for an annuity reported to be $24,000.

Records of the county treasurer's office disclosed today that $33,172 remains to be paid on 1930 taxes on Mrs. McCormick's Lake Shore drive home. Only $5,000 has been paid.

STATIONS KEPT BUSY CASHING LUCKY BUCKS

Every indication points to a happy day, weather permitting, for boys and girls who are going to attend the Sun-Telegraph Lucky Buck overflow days at Kennywood and West View parks tomorrow. Just because they were disappointed last Friday doesn't seem to lessen the enthusiasm of the youngsters.

All of the exchange stations where they may take their Lucky Bucks and spend them for strips of tickets for either park were swarmed with youngsters this morning. There is a big supply of tickets on hand for each park but not too many.

CROWDING AVOIDED

Every precaution has been taken to avoid another crowd like last Friday's—the largest of the kind ever known in Pittsburgh and wholly unexpected. Only enough tickets have been issued in advance this time to comfortably fill both parks and this is all that the Sun-Telegraph or the park managements desire so if it happens that this supply becomes exhausted there will be no more tickets issued, even though a few youngsters are disappointed.

In another part of today's Sun-Telegraph, there is a list of neighborhood stations where Lucky Bucks can be exchanged for strips of tickets to either park. To assure comfort and avoid confusion, it was deemed advisable to place a limit to tickets each youngster could procure, working out a plan to give as many as possible a day of pleasure. Round-trip street car passes may be purchased at any one of these stations at 15 cents each.

GOOD ALL DAY

The strip of tickets for Kennywood is good for the Old Mill Merry-Go-Round, Chairoplane, or Tilt-O-Whirl, Racer, Whip, Miniature Railroad or Jack Rabbit and the Tumble Bug. The strips for West View will be good for the Whippet Coaster, Cuddle Up, Skooter, Merry-Go-Round, Whip, Greyhound Coaster, Caterpillar and Hilarity Hall. These tickets will be good from 11 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night at both Kennywood and West View.

Just bear in mind that this overflow Lucky Buck Day is a "special" at both parks. It was originally intended to reopen the park only Sunday and Monday (Labor Day), but Manager Brady McSwigan, of Kennywood, and Manager Frank Danahey, of West View, came to the front to meet this Lucky Buck emergency and agreed to open their parks tomorrow for the youngsters and the grownups who were disappointed last Friday.

GORDON BACKS LOAN BANK

HARRISBURG, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Wr. William D. Gordon, State Secretary of Banking, has written Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, that principles governing the liquidation of closed banks in Pennsylvania are in accord with those adopted by the federal body.

He said the state department was in accord with the federal board's request that foreclosures on home mortgages be postponed for a 60-day period.

The best possible course to adopt in the handling of properties on which loans have been made by banks now closed, is carefully studied by the realization corporations in five of the principal cities of the state, Dr. Gordon wrote.

There will be no overcrowding at either one of these parks Tomorrow. Only enough tickets have been printed to take care of a normal day's business at either park. When this supply has been exhausted there will be no more, but it is believed that there will be enough tickets to take care of almost every youngster who was disappointed last Friday.

So that as many holders of Lucky Bucks as possible can be taken care of, ONLY ONE STRIP OF TICKETS will be given to each boy or girl. This is for the best interests of all, in line with this effort to reasonably satisfy everyone.

Follow These Instructions:

Lucky Bucks will be exchanged on this basis: If you want tickets for rides and riding devices at Kennywood, take 70 Bucks to your nearest exchange station and get a strip of seven. If you want tickets for West View, take 80 Bucks to the exchange station in your neighborhood and get your strip of eight tickets.

PLEASE DO NOT ASK FOR MORE—GIVE THE OTHER KIDDIES A CHANCE

Bear in mind that you are to count enough Lucky Bucks for this 70 or 80 on the basis of the big figures printed on the Lucky Bucks.

Tickets Now Ready, and, Kids, Don't Be Unreasonable—Give All the Other Kids a Chance

Please Note:—It was originally intended to close the season at Kennywood and West View Sunday and Monday (Labor Day), but owing to this Lucky Buck emergency the management of each park consented to open especially Tomorrow.

ORT ASKS B.-L. FORECLOSURE SUSPENSION

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Suspension of mortgage foreclosures until the Home Loan Banks begin operating was urged upon building and loan association officials today by Franklin D. Fort, chairman of the new system's directing board.

Addressing the fortieth annual convention of the United States Building and Loan League, Fort said the 12 Home Loan Banks would begin to function about October 15 and that "thereafter, mortgage money will be available on sound loans which we are getting ready to grant."

'HALT FORECLOSURES'

He added:

"We hope that every building and loan association will suspend the foreclosure of mortgages, at least where there is the slightest possibility of hope for the mortgagor."

He pointed out that Comptroller of the Currency Pole has directed a suspension of foreclosures of mortgagers by closed national banks and that most of the state banking authorities had pledged co-operation on a 60-day moratorium movement instituted by the board.

Fort also recommended to convention members the formation in every state of building and loan committees analogous to the business and industrial committees that have been created in each federal reserve district. He said these would have as their purpose "putting the lending facilities of your institutions at the service of distressed mortgagors immediately," and added:

"I can assure you that when those committees are formed you will find the utmost spirit of co-operation from the business and industry committee in your federal reserve district."

URGES MORE LOANS

Fort continued:

"Your associations hold thousands upon thousands of mortgages on properties which are deteriorating physically for want of repair. You can far better afford to add an additional loan of $1,000 on many a mortgage than to take over the property in its present condition and then make the repairs.

"Municipalities are starved for the want of taxes. The borrowers from your institutions are permitting tax liens to accumulate with penalties and heavy interest. Both in their interest and your own those taxes should be generally advanced. If you advance them the municipality can stop borrowing money. Nothing will do more to strengthen the value of the property under your mortgage than to strengthen the finances of the municipality where it is located."

OFFICER HURT, DRIVER HELD

Alleged to have fled after striking and injuring a Ross Township officer with his automobile, R. J. Krah, 35, of 185 Dakota street, Bellevue, was at liberty today under $1,000 bond for a hearing before Justice of the Peace Elmer T. Greiner at Bellevue, September 7, according to police.

Police said Krah failed to stop after his automobile collided with the motorcycle of Police Chief Edward Schohn, of Ross Township, at Fremont and Orchard avenues, Bellevue, Wednesday night.

Schohn was taken to Suburban Hospital, Bellevue, where he was reported suffering several fractures of the left leg.

SOVIET ARCTIC PARTY RETURNS

MOSCOW, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Four Soviet scientists have ended a lonely two-year vigil in the bleak Arctic wastes of Northernland during which their only contact with civilization was by radio. They have been relieved by four other observers, one of them a woman.

A brief wireless dispatch from the icebreaker Sibiriakov, now engaged in Arctic exploration, reports that the party of four, headed by the geographer, Ushakiv, were taken aboard after the relief party, sent out on the icebreaker, had taken over.

The women member of the replacement party is Irina Rusinova, who, although she is only 30, is a veteran of polar expeditionary work. With three male colleagues she will spend the next two years exploring Northernland.

EX-POLICEMAN FOUND SHOT

KITTANNING, Pa., Sept. 2.—Joseph Glenn, 55, former local policeman, was found dead in his home, where he lived alone, late yesterday, a bullet wound in his head and clutching a .45 calibre revolver in his right hand.

The body was sprawled across a davenport. Powder burns indicated the bullet had been fired from close range. Police and Coroner A. W. Dosch, while they said the position and wound indicated suicide, were pushing an investigation of possible murder.

Genevieve Under and Anna Daugherty, 25, the latter Glenn's housekeeper, told police they looked through a window and saw the body. The officers broke into the house. Neighbors said they heard no shots. A car, owned by Glenn's son, Ralph, was parked nearby.

Lost Ugly Fat

Her Husband Says She Looks Five Years Younger!

There is a certain weight at which every woman looks her loveliest—not skinny underweight nor pendulous overweight, but normal weight. We find artists, doctors, theatrical producers (and husbands!) all agreed upon this point. "My husband says I look five years younger," writes this lady of 29 who—thanks to her daily dose of Kruschen Salts—has unburdened her body of 18 pounds of ugly fat. Read her letter:—

"Having heard from a friend of mine that she lost considerable weight since taking Kruschen Salts, I started using them in July last when I weighed 177 lbs. I have lost weight steadily since then, and am now 159 lbs—my normal weight. Moreover, I feel brighter and more energetic in every way.

"I have inquired of my dressmaker my measurements, which in August last were bust 40, hips 43½, waist 33½ inches, which is normal for my height, which is 5 ft. 8 in. My age is 29. My husband is a very severe critic. He says I look five years younger. There is no other reason for my loss of weight except Kruschens, as I do not take any particular diet."
(Mrs.) S. R. London, England.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that will last four weeks costs but a trifle—take it as directed every morning. When the jar is empty get on the scales and see how many pounds you have lost. Attention to diet will help—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—

But remember this: to take off fat harmlessly and SAFELY be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any druggist in the world, and if the results one bottle brings do not delight you—do not joyfully satisfy you—why, money back.

WOOD STREET AT SIXTH AVENUE ATLANTIC 4600

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

I think selfishness is the cause of the present deplorable condition of the Broadway theater . . . And it is the selfishness of none other than the producer himself . . . While the very heart of his industry—or art—is wallowing in a morass of depression, Mr. Producer joins the horde of knockers and encourages them . . . Of course, when the Frankensteinish mob ultimately comes clamoring at his own door, he throws up his hands in despair and in turn blames the selfishness of other producers . . . There are many instances of this inexplicable greed . . . As a matter of fact, the whole history of Broadway is colored with them . . . Time and time again, as the inroads of radio and talking pictures made themselves felt, the producer has been unwilling to organize intelligently and co-operate with his neighbor . . . Today, he is suffering . . . Suffering badly . . . And yet, in the very imminence of destruction, he continues his greedy tactics . . . For instance, that mob of lobby-panners over in Newark the night before last . . . They came to bury "Ballyhoo" while the stork was just bringing it in through the chimney . . . I've never heard of embalming fluid brought to a birthday party, but the Broadway producers and their cohorts are ever paradoxical . . . The show happens to be the product of a quartet of the town's keener minds, and evidence of this is carried in every scene of the revue . . . The fact that the production lacks authority and speed is a matter easily corrected . . . But the Newark premiere was a try-out pure and simple, and it is unfair to form definite prejudices before the opening on Broadway . . . But that didn't stop the fellow-producers . . . No, sir . . . They flocked to the Jersey premiere with the enthusiasm of a cub reporter on his first assignment.

But the point I make is not whether "Ballyhoo" is a hit show or not . . . That really doesn't matter . . . But what does matter is the attitude of the numerous rival producers who gathered in the lobby during the intermission and after the final curtain to tear the show to verbal bits . . . One of New York's best revue constructors lined himself against a wall with all who would listen and greeted others as they exited from the auditorium . . . The finale was hardly over, but he already had his six-cylinder hammers pounding . . . "They don't know what to do with their music . . . They didn't handle their comedy to get the most out of it . . . They ruined a perfectly good dance idea . . . They should be in the shoe business," was the general content of his comment . . . On the other side of the lobby was a gentleman whose connection with Broadway is recognized in every corner of the theatrical world . . . He had his hooks in long before the first act was over . . . "Why do idiots produce plays?" he asked everyone who would listen, and there were plenty of willing listeners . . . "For five weeks they have rehearsed the show and yet they don't know how to light a scene properly . . . It's going to be the worst flop of the season" . . . Everyone had his own idea of how the production should have been managed or in what warehouse it should be stored . . . I had gone to Newark on an uncritical jaunt, knowing full well the emergencies of a try-out, but by the time I was ready to return I had been made to feel that the young producers of "Ballyhoo" were arch-criminals, that they had robbed the charity box to get backing, that they had committed treason, and that a presidential edict should be issued to have them shot at dawn.

It so happens that "Ballyhoo" is the first revue of the new season scheduled for a Main Stem bow . . . If it is a success, the psychological effect on the subsequent openings is worth more than an 8 weeks' buy from the ticket agencies . . . If it flops, it casts a pall on all the shows that are to follow it . . . But the allegedly wise Broadway producer is a blind-man . . . And he is unwilling to be told . . . Moreover he is anxious to spoil his nose to spite his face . . . In fact, he hires motor cars and drags along a retinue of stooges to accomplish the self-marring . . . At the risk of being regarded in the light of a sophomore-on-Broadway, I suggest that the two gentlemen who did the loudest knocking mend their ways . . . And take themselves over to Newark again tonight, and perhaps offer the directors of "Ballyhoo" a few constructive ideas—which they unquestionably are capable of offering . . . It may make the road a bit easier for themselves when their own shows hit Broadway in the next four or six weeks . . . Incidentally, it was one of these two producers who was most pugnacious in his eviction of a lobby-panner during one of his own openings not so long ago . . . At that time I heard him wail, "Why won't they let me alone? . . . My show isn't ready for New York inspection . . . That's why I'm opening out of town . . . But the buzzards are already on my trail . . . You'll never find me judging a man's work until he tells me it is complete" . . . Oh, yeah?

Another thing that worries me is the nefarious practice of several local real-estate agents . . . Their idea has been to encourage tenants to pay rents in advance for a few months . . . Knowing all along that the building would change hands and that the unsuspecting cliff-dwellers would be unable to reclaim the money without recourse to law . . . And even then it isn't always possible to collect.

. . . One newspaper lass had a few hundred dollars the day she was let out of her job . . . Fearing that she would be unable to earn her rent for the next few months, she responded immediately to the agent's suggestion that she cover herself for three succeeding months . . . And gave him $180 . . . But the apartment house was sold the next week, and now the ex-sob-sister has a sob-story of her own to write. . . . One young man engaged in a real estate agent's office told me he was instructed to ask tenants for advance rentals . . . But that he discouraged it, himself, and may even lose his own job as a result . . . Of course, the better companies look down on this practice, but there are enough of the unscrupulous to make life miserable . . . I liked Jimmy Cannon's reply to that youngster who just arrived in town and came into Dave's to meet the so-called big shots as his first step in "conquering the town" . . . "I want to get into the picture business and all I ask is a chance to start at the bottom," he told the bored listeners; to which Jimmy retorted, "Why not go down to Delancey St., get you a good accent and start at the top?"

Libby Holman's plight continues to be a topic whenever show-people meet, and should North Carolina select its jury from Broadway, I think the torch-singer would come out a national heroine . . . And the sentiment is not simply that of the old-timers who feel that Libby is being persecuted because of her theatrical standing . . . Priscilla Guerney, socially registered dotter of the elevator manufacturer, who has turned to the stage for her profession, added a new light yesterday when she discussed the time she appeared with Libby in Ned Wayburn's "Gambols" . . . "All this talk about Libby playing with revolvers is ridiculous," she said. "I remember her aversion to handling a prop gun in one of the comedy scenes of the show . . . Libby was to play the surprised wife who shoots her husband for a laugh, but her absolute dread of handling the firearm compelled the director to put one of the other girls in the show into the sketch . . . Incidentally the one to replace here was her closest pal, Garnet O'Brien, whose father is one of the major executives in the famous flour mills of Milwaukee" . . . Perhaps, those who are to judge Libby, when she goes on trial for murder, may be happy to know about this incident.

Boyd Stars In 'Yukon'

"Yukon," a story of the Northwest, has been chosen as Bill Boyd's first starring picture for RKO Radio, according to David O. Selznik, executive vice president in charge of all production.

Boyd, virile star of "Carnival Boat," "Suicide Fleet," "Flying Fool" and others, is to make a series of four outdoor pictures for RKO, which will be directed by Casey Robinson.

"Yukon" is from the story, "Sir Piegan Passes," by W. C. Tuttle, author of adventure stories. Ray Harris is writing the screen play. B. P. Zeidman will serve as associate producer on the Boyd series of films.

Lee Tracy Has Yen For Ballustrades

The carpenter shop on Columbia's lot was startled by an unusual order the other day. A rush order was received to immediately cut off the newel post at the bottom of the stair rail leading to the dressing rooms. The reason—Lee Tracy, who is playing the lead in the company's "Night Mayor," likes to slide down ballustrades and does not like to make unhappy landings.

Heartstrings Pulled in Fulton

By JAMES A. BAUBIE

There's nothing to beat the movies for staging a good old-fashioned "tear-puller," and one of the best to come out of Hollywood in several weeks is "Hearts of Humanity," Fulton attraction.

Jean Hersholt, whose artistic muse seems to work overtime when pulling at the heartstrings, is good for everybody. To see such a kindly old soul, even in make-believe, is a relief from the hectic, blase or handsome beings usually holding the center of the screen.

And little Jackie Searl (wonder why all the kid stars are named Jackie), does a masterful job of his own in bringing lumps to your throat. He can make you laugh, too.

Between the two of them they make good entertainment out of a very ordinary story.

Hersholt is the Jewish proprietor of a little store on the lower East Side, New York; a widower who is finding it a hard task to bring up his roughneck son.

Jackie is an Irish orphan whom the Jewish storekeeper adopts, because of his friendship for the boy's father, shot while performing his duty as a New York policeman.

Jackie's efforts to reform his adopted brother furnish the motif of the picture, showing Mr. Hersholt in all of his characteristic mannerisms as he registers love, happiness and sorrow. He is one actor who can hold your attention even while he slumbers on the couch, his face covered with a newspaper and only his feet exposed to dramatization.

There is one particularly clever scene when Jackie crashes into the home of a rich man who has bought his harp from the second-hand store where the boy had sold it to raise funds for patching up one of his adopted brother's misdeeds.

As a result of this excursion through the rain, the boy falls ill and by his sickness effects a transformation in the wayward one.

Jack Oakie Will Box Mushy Callahan

As if to prove that the earlier announcement of his intention to take up boxing seriously was no idle boast, Jack Oakie has agreed to fight Mushy Callahan for 10 rounds in "Madison Square Garden," the sports picture which Charles R. Rogers is producing for Paramount. In facing Callahan during these scenes, Oakie will be called upon to use all of the boxing skill which he has acquired under the tutelage of Tedy Hayes, former trainer of Jack Dempsey, for Mushy was the holder of the junior welterweight championship until two years ago.

Norma Shearer Uses White Flowers

Norma Shearer, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, always uses pure white flowers as her dining room decorations for dinner parties. With the flowers she uses cream-colored candles in cut crystal holders and lace tablecloths on the polished, honey-colored table.

Scribe

Lee Tracy is a columnist in the film, "Blessed Event," opening in the Stanley today. This is one of the pictures in the Warner Brothers "Greater Movie Month" schedule.

Bull Fighter In Movies

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Sidney Franklin, the Brooklyn bull fighter who won note in Spanish arenas, is going into the movies.

Samuel Goldwyn has announced that Franklin, who recently served as technical adviser on bull fight sequences, has canceled sailing arrangements to return to Hollywood for a part in a film starring Eddie Cantor.

Charlie Ruggles Has Handball Title

Although he never played football, Charlie Ruggles, featured with Johnny Mack Brown, all-American star, and a group of 35 outstanding gridders in "70,000 Witnesses," which Charles B. Rogers is producing for Paramount, doesn't feel out of place among this group of athletes. Ruggles is recognized as one of the outstanding handball players of the country. He held the championship of the Los Angeles Athletic Club for several years and won the same title at the New York Athletic Club.

New Pictures Billed

Marion Davies plays the title role of Blondie in the feature film, "Blondie of the Follies," which opens today in the Penn. Robert Montgomery heads Miss Davies' supporting cast.

Dick Powell, Lee Tracy and Mary Brian appear in "Blessed Event," opening in the Stanley today.

Opening in the Warner today is "Horse Feathers," with the Four Marx Brothers.

After being dark for several months, the Davis reopen today with "Back Street," starring Irene Dunne and John Boles.

Jean Hersholt and Jackie Searl are seen in "Hearts of Humanity," the film feature in the Fulton.

The Sheridan Square offers a double bill Saturday, with "Night Club Lady," starring Sarah Padden, and Zane Grey in "South Seas Adventures."

Irene Dunne and John Boles will be seen in the Enright, beginning tomorrow in "Back Street."

Davies Film In Penn

Marion Davies' latest starring picture, "Blondie of the Follies," opens today in the Penn. Robert Montgomery has the male lead.

In the cast, supporting Miss Davies and Mr. Montgomery, are such screen luminaries as Billie Dove, Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante, James Gleason, Zasu Pitts, Sidney Toler, Douglass Dumbrille, Sarah Padden, Louise Carter, Clyde Cook and the Rocky Twins, direct from the Paris musical stage.

"Blondie of the Follies" is a tale of the adventures of two girls who leave their New York tenement homes for the greater ease and luxury of Broadway stage popularity. Frances Marion wrote this original screen story for Miss Davies. Edmund Goulding directed for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Microphone Visits Reservation

"Wild Horse Stampede," Columbia's horse production, starring Rex, the famous black stallion, will not only be the first film to feature hundreds of wild horses since the advent of talkies but will also mark the first time a movie microphone has been placed on a reservation.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"DEAR MARK:" writes John Dolan, of Chicago. "For some reason or other, it seems to be the vogue to send columnists choice bits and morsels from the catalogue of life. Well, here's one that should certainly find a spot in your memory.

"For the want of a better name, let's call him Capt. Lars Svenson. He's a lake-faring man, broad of stature and red of face. He has taken his duties seriously all through his life and he has always demanded that others do likewise.

"His marital troubles developed late in life. Seems that the wife said he nagged her—and he said the wife nagged him. At any rate, they were continually fighting. It made no difference whether they were aboard ship or on land. They were always waging one continuous battle.

"Eventually, a divorce was granted—and the captain needed a new housekeeper. When housekeepers are needed, that's where I come in. As the proprietor of Dolan's Employment Service, I was approached by the captain and informed of his requirements. I'm not going to attempt to imitate his manner of speech for two reasons: First, I couldn't do it. And, second, you couldn't print it if I could.

"'I want a woman who knows how to keep her eyes open and her mouth shut. She's got to keep her nose out of my affairs or I'll break her jaw in no time.' She must be the best cook on the lakes and she's got to know something about water.

"'She don't have to be pretty, but I don't want any homely women aropund me. I'll pay a decent wage, but I don't want her expecting a night off whenever she pleases.

"'That's the kind of housekeeper I want. And don't be sending me tramps that don't fit the bill.'

"Well, Mark, it's probably fairly evident by this time that the captain was no easy man to suit. We sent him girl after girl, but none of them was satisfactory. As soon as we sent them, he fired them. We sent him tall ones and small ones, stout ones and lean ones. A number of them were really excellent housekeepers. But to the captain, they were all terrible.

"He dropped in one afternoon and laid down the law.

"'I don't know what's the matter with you, Dolan. I give you my business and you ignore me completely. I told you not to send me any woman who didn't meet the requirements I gave you. And you haven't sent one who was even close.

"'If you want me to go somewhere else, I'll do so. I'm not a hard man to get along with, and there must be a million women in this country who would leap at the chance to be my housekeeper. But can you find even one? You cannot.

"'I'm giving you this one more chance before I look elsewhere. And I'm giving you due warning.'

"Having learned long ago that it doesn't pay to lose your temper, I took it on the chin and still smiled.

"'Okay, captain,' I told him. 'Sorry you haven't been satisfied thus far, but I'll do my very best to make up for it now. I'm going to send you the finest housekeeper in Chicago. If she doesn't satisfy you, nobody will. I can promise you that this next woman will be a marvel.'

"And, Mark, I kept my word. I sent him a housekeeper, and she remained there week after week. She has been working for him over a year now, and she draws her salary regularly. They get along beautifully together, and both seem very satisfied.

"But the neighbors are gossiping. For the housekeeper I sent him was his former wife!"

"HERE'S a tale," writes Leonard Lyons, "that is going the rounds of the cloak and suit trade. It concerns a large manufacturer who found himself stuck with several thousand dresses. He called in his star salesman one morning and told him to start on a road trip immediately.

"'I want you to sell these dresses,' he said, 'but don't sell them for less than $10.75 each. Under no circumstances, sell for less. Now go out and get some business.'

"The salesman went out, but sales were rare. Whatever sales he did make were in small quantities. He fumed and raged, but to no avail. He finally hit the buyer for a large New England firm. The buyer liked the dresses, but he indicated that the price was too high.

"'Tell you what I'll do,' said the buyer. 'If you can get your price down to $9.75, I'll take 500 of these dresses.'

"The salesman wired his house, and the reply read: 'Okay. Sell.' The following week, the salesman was in a large Southern department store. The buyer there said that he would take 1,000 dresses, provided the price came down to $9. The salesman wired his firm. And once more the same reply: 'Okay. Sell.'

"He visited a Texas dress house. The buyer offered to purchase 2,000 dresses at $7. The same wire—and the same reply to sell. The salesman was elated—but surprised. Several days later, he went to a Chicago mail order house. The buyer there said they would buy 5,000 dresses at $5 each. He wired with the same result. Back came the reply: 'Okay. Sell.'

"The salesman left the store, shaking his head quizzically. Something must have been wrong to make his employer alter his obstinate selling price in each case. His thoughts made him oblivious to his surroundings. A truck bore down. Brakes screeched. Too late.

"At the hospital, they told him his chances for recovery were very slight.

"'If there's anything I can do for you,' said the doctor, 'you'd better tell me now. I'll be very frank with you and state that there's but a slight chance of your pulling through. So if you want me to wire anybody, or do anything for you, you'd best tell me at once.'

"The salesman moaned.

"'So this is my last chance, eh?' he asked.

"'Yes,' replied the doctor. 'It is.'

"The salesman opened one eye.

"'Well, then,' he whispered, 'wire my boss and ask him absolutely—what's the lowest price on those dresses?'" . . .

* * *

"I WAS employed in a local lunch room last week," writes Pep Epstein, of Maspeth, L. I., "when a shabbily dressed man walked into the place and asked for something to eat. He told me tearfully that he was desperately hungry.

"I didn't have the heart to refuse the man, so I gave him a sandwich and a cup of coffee. He thanked me a great deal and ate rapidly. When he had finished, he reached into his pocket and slapped 15 cents on the counter.

"'Now,' he said, 'I'll have another cup of coffee and a piece of cherry pie!'" . . .

They were taken into custody on a description sent out by Chief W. A. Landvoight of the United States Secret Service in Pittsburgh, of two men and their automobile. SOCIETY GIRL'S DEATH HELD SUICIDE

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Miss Elizabeth Payne, 25-year-old daughter of Mayor R. J. Payne, found fatally wounded by a pistol bullet yesterday in the office where she was employed, was declared to have committed suicide, in a verdict returned last night by Coroner John E. Cole.

Miss Payne, a prominent member of society here, died several hours after Robert Olney, a business associate, found her lying on the floor. She never regained consciousness.

Coroner Cole said investigation showed Miss Payne had evidently tested the pistol by firing a shot from the office doorway into the yard. Witnesses said they heard two reports during the lunch hour when the young woman was shot.

A search failed to reveal any note. Friends said she had been in a nervous condition recently.

Olney, who said he made the discovery upon returning from lunch, told officers the pistol belonged to him. The weapon had been kept in the office safe.

Miss Payne was employed by her brother, Robert B. Payne. Her father, a practicing physician, and a first cousin of John Barton Payne, president of the American Red Cross, was elected mayor of Fredericksburg in June without opposition, and took office yesterday to begin a four-year term.

SAYS SHE STOLE TO SAVE MATE

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 2.—(Universal.)—Justice moved forward today to prepare the fate of a 23-year-old girl who stole from her employer to save the life of her husband, and, when the task was completed, confessed voluntarily.

As the wheels of law were set in motion to deal with this poignant case, the girl, Mrs. Marie Shumway, in an exclusive interview, related the story of her theft of $16,000 from the Paramount Securities over a period of two years.

Her conscience clear at last, the young office clerk told of a love that transcended all laws—laws that she willingly broke, laws she is even now more willing to face. She said:

"I planned to divorce my husband, Kenneth, in 1929. Then he became ill, desperately ill. They thought he would die. I went back to him. Our love was reborn.

"I worked during the day and nursed him at night.

"A little while ago the doctors told me he was well at last.

"It all came to me then. I was a thief. But I was not sorry. I decided to confess."

JACK JOHNSON ARREST ASKED

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 2.—(Universal.)—San Francisco police have been asked to arrest Jack Johnson, former world's heavyweight champion, on a bench warrant issued following Johnson's failure to appear here yesterday in answer to six wage complaints.

When Johnson's case was called in Municipal Court his attorney produced a telegram saying the ex-pugilist was detained in San Francisco. Angered by the frequent continuances of the case, Judge Damon issued the bench warrant. Bail was set at $300.

The wage claims grew out of the ex-champion's alleged failure to pay money due former employes of his cafe.

TEXAS PRIMARY INVESTIGATION SOUGHT

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—A committee of the Texas Senate had under consideration today a resolution which would authorize a legislative investigation of last Saturday's Democratic run-off primary in which Gov. R. S. Sterling has charged many illegal ballots were cast.

The race for the gubernatorial nomination was of principal interest and virtually complete unofficial tabulations of the Texas election bureau show Gov. Sterling trailing Mrs. Miriam A. (Ma) Ferguson, former chief executive, by nearly 2,400 votes.

Gov. Sterling declared he would be declared the party nominee by a "substantial majority of all lawful ballots."

James E. Ferguson, husband of Mrs. Ferguson, asserted the election had been "gloriously won." Ferguson was impeached as governor in 1917, and his wife later won the office in a "vindication" campaign.

The resolution of investigation was introduced at a special session of the Legislature, called to consider tax relief measures.

Senator Walter Woodward, a Sterling supporter, told the Senate he had information that a tally of 100 votes in a North Texas box had been changed to 1,000 and that in less than six counties more than 10,000 illegal votes had been cast. He said the charges had been broadcast throughout the country and an investigation was needed to clear the state's name.

Sleuths Doubt Story Of Youth Brought Here for Quiz

Lieut. Frank Ferris, of the Homicide Squad, today said he didn't believe the confession of Edward Morgan, 19, a Negro, reputed to have confessed murdering John Bazzano, Pittsburgh racketeer, for $2,500.

Morgan and Eugene Davenport, 18, of Sacramento, Cal., and Charles LeAndrey, 18, of Fall River, Mass., arrested near Steubenville, were brought back to Pittsburgh in connection with the theft of an automobile from John Cain, of 256 Lombard street.

Magistrate Thomas D. Jones held the three for court on charges of larceny. Cain testified they not only stole his auto, but also his shoes, false teeth and glasses.

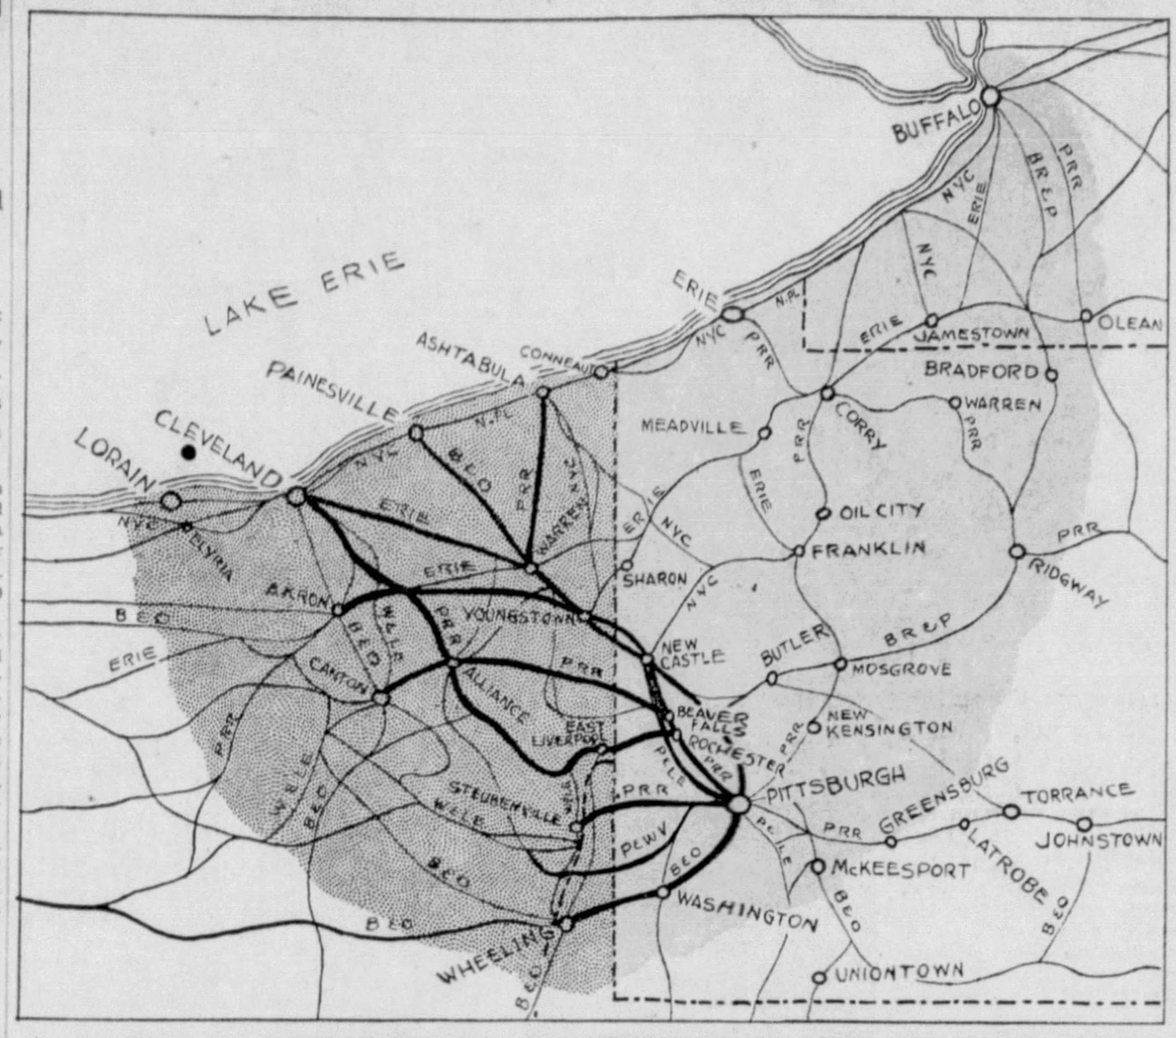
How New Rail Rates Cut Pittsburgh Coal Market



THE PITTSBURGH COAL MARKET (SHADED AREA) AND THE HALF THAT IS LOST (DARKER AREA) THROUGH NEW RATES

The Ohio section of the generally-outlined market for Pittsburgh coal that the Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau points out as lost by the new, lower intra-Ohio carrier rates that the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central and Pittsburgh and West Virginia railroads put in effect today in joining the Wheeling and Lake Erie in hauling Ohio coal to Ohio markets. Ohio mines thus pay $1.45 per ton freight, Pittsburgh mines $1.84. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph staff artist's map.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

BISHOP, Cal., Sept. 2.

Everybody has been denying that they saw this fellow Norman, the head of the Bank of England. Hoover says if he saw him it was under an assumed name. Mellon says he never heard of him. So the whole thing is just a rumor. Mr. Norman wasn't in America at all.

Will Rogers

The orange squeezers out in California went for the Democratic ticket here the other day like they did in the old days when they was Republicans.

The rest of the country certainly got even with California. They had an eclipse, and if you ever saw a thing leave anyone flat, it left us. The Chamber of Commerce has already taken it up. New England got the whole thing. It's their first show since the Plymouth Rock "fiasco."

Yours, WILL.

The plans, now semi-complete, will be submitted to Lang for his approval prior to being given to Council.

Smith Is Using Eclipse Gazer Dark Glasses

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

When the moon and sun play tiddlywinks in the sky they call it an eclipse.

When our big men do the same thing on earth they call it politics.

The object is to blanket the other man so he will be invisible to the news reels.

The most remarkable political eclipse is of that grand old Tammany planet, Al Smith. Al is gazing at the Democratic party through a chunk of 1928 smoked glass.

The Republican party has copped all his ideas. That puts Al on a deserted detour with a set of sore feet. He can't hitch and he can't hike.

So to get even Al became editor of the Outlook, a magazine that is published once a month, ready or not. He can treat his opponents to many an inky roast and use blue pencils for skewers.

Al says he is going to be absolutely fair to everybody. Which means any politician can have rebuttal space in the Outlook at regular advertising rates.

State Relief Orders Good Now—Pinchot

HARRISBURG, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Philadelphia's emergency relief board could have issued food orders yesterday under the provisions of the $12,000,000 Talbot relief act, Gov. Gifford Pinchot today telegraphed Clinton R. Woodruff, temporary chairman of the Philadelphia County Board.

Woodruff yesterday blamed the State Emergency Relief Board, of which the Governor is chairman, for the delay in issuance of the orders. The act became effective yesterday and local boards can now issue the orders for food or work relief, the Governor explained.

PINCHOT URGED TO VETO BILL FOR LOAN

Action Taken in Face Of Huge Shortage In Welfare Fund

With a shortage of $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 estimated for 1933 unemployment relief, Allegheny County Commissioners today sought to block the proposed $800,000 bond issue by the County Poor Directors.

Wilbur F. Maxwell, secretary of the Welfare Fund, gave out the estimate of the 1933 shortage.

Chairman Charles G. McGovern, acting for the Board of County Commissioners, today wired Gov. Gifford Pinchot asking that he withhold approval of an emergency bill which would authorize the Poor Directors to issue bonds. He said the commissioners would meet the need from available funds.

Maj. J. Clyde Miller, president of the Poor Directors, said:

"This would take the Poor Directors out of the picture so far as outdoor relief is concerned."

SHOE PURCHASE BALKED

Purchase of shoes for approximately 15,000 barefoot school children today encountered legal difficulties, which it was hoped might be ironed out at a later conference.

Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of welfare, had expected to buy the shoes on relief orders, but Assistant City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner said they would have to be purchased by contract.

While the Welfare Fund and the Allegheny County Emergency Association will not solicit large funds for relief in their 1933 campaign this fall, the $6,100,000 anticipated aid from state and city will fall far short of meeting relief needs.

Of this, $1,920,000 is state aid, ear-marked for food orders exclusively. The balance is in authorized, but unissued, city bonds. Only the state funds are available for county use, where they would supply no more than half rations for the needy. Present county funds will be gone by September 10.

INCREASED BURDEN

Predicting a rapid rise in the number of relief cases, Maxwell commented:

"We can expect the load of relief to reach a total of 57,000 families. At the same rate per family which existed when 32,000 families were given a total of $130,000 per week, this number would require $228,000 per week."

Adding a minimum of 6 per cent for expense of administering public relief—an item not included in appropriations of city, county and state—Maxwell estimates weekly cost at $241,680. At this rate, state funds, if spent on full minimum relief orders of 90 cents per person per week would last only eight weeks, he points out.

City funds available from the $800,000 obtained through sale of bonds will last, if spent on full relief, but a few weeks. Allowing for the rise in case load, the entire $5,000,000 issue would last only until November 21, in the city, Maxwell said.

TAX FUND NEEDED

Maxwell continued:

"It can easily be seen, first, that additional tax funds must be made available for 1933 to the total of eight or 10 millions and, second, that it will be impossible to raise any such sums from private contributions."

Maxwell, concluding, said that "it remains the obligation of the Welfare Fund and Emergency Association to make available sums needed to supplant public relief in furnishing necessities which cannot be provided by public authorities and to maintain the service necessary to safeguard health and morale and prevent the development of crime."

It is on the basis of this obligation, Maxwell says, that the Welfare Fund will ask for less than half its requests for 1932, leaving large-scale unemployment relief to public appropriations. Maxwell adds a warning that:

"In view of the fact that thousands are now in actual need who were subscribers last fall, it is evident that just as great generosity on the part of those who can give will be necessary this fall as characterized the campaign last year."

State Relief Chief Gets $10,000 Salary

W. B. Rodgers, of the McCrady-Rodgers Company, Pittsburgh, who gave up a $15,000 a year job to accept Gov. Pinchot's appointment as executive director of the State Emergency Relief Board, is to be paid at the rate of $10,000 a year, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg.

The salary will be paid from the relief fund, Gov. Pinchot said.

Volunteers Relieve 186,000 Families

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Leaving a conference with President Hoover yesterday, Gen. Ballington Booth, leader of the Volunteers of America, said he had reported his organization already had aided more than 186,000 families "with every indication that this number will be surpassed during the next 12 months."

Police Give Fund to Bury Needy Family's Baby

Eight-month-old John Vogel, Jr., of 5900 Harvard street, today had been saved from cremation at the County Morgue by kindly East End police.

The infant died Wednesday in Presbyterian Hospital of scalds suffered when a pot of hot coffee was upset. Jobless and destitute, there was no money in the Vogel household to bury the child.

Learning of the plight of the family, Sergt. William F. O'Connor of the East End Police station solicited a fund among his fellow officers and arranged for the burial.

The body of the infant was returned to its parents home last night and a private funeral was planned today.

SPEED FLIERS IN NEW TESTS

CLEVELAND, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—America's fastest racing pilots were more confident than ever today that the world's land-plane speed record will be broken before the national air races end Monday.

A large part of their encouragement came from a spectacular performance yesterday by Maj. James H. Doolittle. Flying a stubby, high-powered monoplane, the major made one dash over a three-kilometer course, at a speed of 301.106 miles an hour.

Although the world's record, made by the late Adjt. Bonnett of France is only 278.47 miles an hour, Doolittle was not credited with breaking it, because his 301-mile speed was partly due to a tail wind.

On four laps, two with the wind and two against it, Doolittle averaged 282.672 miles an hour. His slowest time was 261.834.

Two other speed kings planned to seek the record today. Jimmie Haizlip, new holder of the transcontinental record, and James R. Wedell had their fast planes ready to go, both expecting 275 miles an hour and possibly more.

Capt. Roscoe Turner, who averaged 261.414 in an attempt at the record yesterday, also probably will try again before the race meet closes.

KLINE 'FIXER' ALLOWED BOND

Howard F. Gross, a former city employe, convicted in Butler County as a "jury fixer" in the trial of Mayor Charles H. Kline, today sought bond to effect his release from the Butler County jail. An order granting Gross' release for 60 days to permit him to visit his wife, who is ill here, was signed yesterday by Judge Thomas W. Watson in Butler County.

Gross was sentenced to a year in jail on a charge of embracery in attempting to "fix" a juror in the trial of Mayor Kline and former supplies director, Bertram L. Succop, on charges of misconduct in office.

GUNMEN HOLD 7 AT BAY IN HOLDUP

Abducted Man Forced From Auto After Theft in Park

Kidnaping bandits invaded the Bigelow boulevard district late last night and forced C. M. McKenzie, of 362 South Highland avenue, into their automobile. Driving to Herron Hill Park, two armed men robbed McKenzie of $14 and forced him out of the machine.

McKenzie told police he was standing in front of the Royal Yorke Apartments at 3500 Bigelow boulevard when the pair in an automobile approached him.

Police also sought three bandits who escaped with $150 from the Huss Brothers' real estate office, at Baum boulevard and South Highland avenue, after a daring daylight holdup. They forced their victims to lie on the floor while they disappeared in the East Liberty shopping crowds.

Alfred Huss, of 1014 Winterton street, one of the owners, was forced to open a safe which contained the money. While one of the gunmen scooped up the cash, the other two held at bay Gladys Silberberg, of 5802 Hobart street; Josephine McCoy, of 7409 Pennfield court; D. V. McCullough, of 1666 Jancey street, and Thomas McMahon, of 1112 Macon street, the clerks, and two women customers. The women were lined against one side of the office and the men to the other.

Backing out of the office the trio ordered their victims to lie on the floor. They fled into the street, where they entered an automobile. The car sped down the boulevard.

BAIL ALLOWED IN POISON PLOT

Mrs. Mary Chalfa, 31, and Mrs. Anna Allas, 38, both of Munhall, still stood charged with murder in connection with the "insurance poison plots" today, but were granted the right to post $5,000 bail each.

Judge Thomas M. Marshall, in Criminal Court, refused to grant the writ of habeas corpus asked in the hope that the charges would be thrown out of court, but "because of the weakness of prosecution testimony," allowed the bail. The women had not yet posted the bail today.

Mrs. Grizella Young, self-styled fortune teller of Mifflin Township, star witness for the commonwealth, testified she heard the two women talk of a poison American doctors couldn't understand. She said:

"I heard Mrs. Allas say she rubbed this poison, a salve, under the arms and knees, and on the spine of her boys who died."

Mrs. Young denied she told her clients that relatives would die and that she induced them to insure the relatives through a friend of Mrs. Young.

CHARGE THREAT, 3 ARRESTED

A promise to "put a competitor out of business" for $5,000, according to police, today had led to the arrest of Meyer Galson, 40, of 3202 Ward street, said to be a former pawnbroker, and of two men in the office of the "rival" concern.

Kalson was arrested by city detectives as he conferred with officials of the National Window Cleaning Company relative to the proposition. Soon after the police visited the Euclid Window Cleaning Company, the "marked" rival, where Abraham Berg, 38, and Max Kerr, 54, both of Cleveland, were arrested. All were charged with being suspicious person.

Steel Worker's Body Taken from River

The body of a man recovered yesterday from the Monongahela River near Brown's Bridge was identified at the county morgue last night as that of John Lang, 33, of 603 East End avenue. The body was discovered by three men crossing the bridge. Lang, an employe of the Carnegie Steel Company, had not been seen since Wednesday, according to the Coroner's report.

Drys Arrest 2 Men In Dance Hall Raid

George Daniels, 57, and his son, Frederick, 20, were arrested last night by prohibition agents in a raid on a two-story frame building on the Daniel farm, known as Paradise Garden, near Allison Park.

The agents reported seizing a half barrel of beer and some whisky. The second floor of the building was used as a dance hall, it was said. The two men will be arraigned before the United States Commissioner.

CAPONE SLEUTH HELD FOR TRIAL

Thomas J. Freil, former state policeman and Department of Justice Agent, active in the Al Capone investigation, held for court in $500 bond following a hearing last night before Burgess Charles Chamberlin, of Dormont, on a charge of driving under influence of liquor and fined $35 on charges of drunkenness, disorderly ocnduct and resisting arrest.

C. H. Hasley, Dormont police captain, testified Friel called him a "punk cop," hit him on the lip, and butted a fellow officer, injuring the latter's thumb, when they arrested him in West Liberty aveune.

Friel was dismissed from government service yesterday. Asked by the burgess to speak in his defense, he answered he had nothing to say, but requested the court's mercy. The burgess scored him for his behavior.

Bond for Friel's appearance last night was reported posted by William J. (Woogie) Harris, Hill "numbers" man. Property at 7604 Mulford street was named on the bond.

FARM STRIKERS QUIT SIEGE

CHEROKEE, Ia., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Farmers' holiday adherents who previously declared they would stay on highways near here until details of a mysterious shooting affair in which 14 pickets were wounded were settled, today were leaving for their homes.

Yesterday there were 300 or 400 pickets here, but this morning only approximately 150 remained and the situation was described by deputies as quiet.

Meanwhile, in other parts of Iowa, the movement was in the doldroms, following a truce order by Milo Reno, president of the national association, and a request from the Woodbury County Association that the governors of Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota declare a moratorium on the marketing of agricultural products.

Listening In—Flying Vera: Lots of Records: Allen's Ties.

Whenever she takes a trip that involves more than two hours' travel, Vera Eakin goes by plane . . . Virginia Rea has a collection of more than 1,000 phonograph records, many of which are unobtainable now. Among them is the only record Adalina Patti made, some of the early European recordings of Caruso and many of the "gems" from musical comedies and light operas of the late '90's . . . Arthur Allen, who never throws an old tie away, has several hundred, about four dozen of which have never been worn . . . He can't resist buying one if he likes the color of it.

Miss Eakin

Harry Leedy, manager of the Boswell Sisters, brought two trunks full of trick gadgets back from Paris for the trio . . . Their apartment now resembles a museum.

Johnny Marvin offered to sing songs that reminded his listeners of those for whom they were lonesome and 4,000 requests poured in. . . . Out of that number, 806 were for "The Rosary;" 112 for "When You and I Were Young, Maggie;" 83 for "Oh, How I Miss You Tonight;" 71 for "Side By Side;" 62 for "Dreaming;" 54 for "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen," and 29 for "Mighty Lak a Rose."

H. C. Connette, NBC dramatist, has a housekeeper whom he has never seen—they communicate by notes left on his desk. All he knows about her is that "she must be Scotch, because she retrieves the evelopes of all the notes and uses them over again."

John Carlile, CBS production chief, spent his vacation taking a walking trip through the White Mountains.

'WAR' DEFI GIVEN CHINA BY STATE

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service.

MUKDEN, Sept. 2.—A virtual war ultimatum was delivered to China by the young state of Manchukuo today.

Declaring the province of Jehol was the seat of the only disorderly elements in the new Japanese-inspired state, the "ultimatum" said Manchukuo was "resolved to adopt appropriate measures in order to clear out the outlaw elements completely."

The statement, signed by Foreign Minister Hsieh Chih-Shih and addressed to the Chinese National government at Nanking, blamed "military groups" of North China as responsible for the unrest in Jehol, and declared China would be responsible for "whatever situation arises" from the proposed Manchukuo action.

Exposed Theft Ends Banker's High Living

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Twelve years of lavish living, trips to sea in speedy motorboats, racing through the country-side in latest model automobiles and investments in a rum running syndicate were at an end today for William E. Von Glahn.

The soft-spoken, studious-looking head bookkeeper of a branch of the Manufacturers' Trust Company was under charges of having defrauded the company of nearly $100,000 in 12 years through a check forging system which he managed to hide from auditors until recently.

LOSES FREEDOM FOR DAUGHTER

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Massachusetts State Prison today counted among its inmates Frank Howard, 72, who was confronted with life imprisonment—after having been free on parole for 18 years.

A pair of shoes, a bottle of perfume and a handbag, all worth $7, were responsible. Howard, an unemployed painter, allegedly stole the articles for his daughter, a high school student.

After 17 years in prison under a life sentence for armed robbery, Howard was paroled in 1914, on condition he never again would commit an offense against the law.

Howard married soon after his release. His wife and the daughter never knew of his prison record. The news came with his arrest in Boston Monday on the shoplifting charge. He had gone to Boston, his wife said, in search of employment.

UTILITY BONDS BAN RENEWED

HARRISBURG, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Securities Commission today reinstated its order forbidding the sale of the Pennsylvania Electric Company's first and refunding mortgage gold bonds, series H-5's, due 1962.

The commission last week stopped the sale because of technical irregularities in descriptive circulars, but lifted the ban after amendments were made.

The commission today learned that the Pennsylvania Electric Company's earning statement, set forth in the circular, includes income from the Clarion River Power Company, which it is reported to have purchased. Members said that if further revisions separate the Pennsylvania Company's earnings from the Clarion River Company's earnings, they will lift the ban again.

Illness Halts U. S. Mountain Climbers

TROSTBERG, Germany, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The German-American Himalaya expedition, which set out in July to climb the peak, Nanga Parbat, on the western frontier of Kashmir, India, which rises to an altitude of 26,600 feet, has been obliged to give up its objective because of severe illness among the party, which will return to Germany.

STORM FLOODS CANONSBURG

CANONSBURG, Sept. 3.—Cellars were flooded and automobile traffic paralyzed here early today in the business section following a cloudburst.

The heavy rain which started at 6 o'clock lasted for more than an hour. Debris was strewn on the main streets, clogging sewers and putting automobiles out of commission when high water reached the engines.

GANGSTER SLAIN IN BEER WAR

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Walter Zwolinski, an enemy of the notorious "Spike" O'Donnell, was assassinated in typical gangland fashion today in what police believed was a new outbreak in the war for control of South Side beer territory.

His bullet riddled body, with a coat and shirt pulled over his head, was found sprawled on the front seat of a new sedan parked in an alley. He apparently had been killed somewhere else. The auto belonged to him.

Two years ago Zwolinski left the "Spike" O'Donnell mob to join the syndicate formed by George Downs and Danny McGeoghan, also renegades from the O'Donnel camp. Shortly after this break he virtually courted death by going to the O'Donnell home and beating up "Spike," his brother, Steve, and his pet goat.

Apricots Help to Build Up Red Blood Cells

This fruit contains valuable mineral salts which aid in maintaining the alkaline reaction of the body.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

In England, as early as the sixteenth century, the apricot was an old and popular fruit. It was first grown in Armenia and is still found wild in that region of the Caucasus mountains. The fruit was first grown in this country in 1869. It was introduced into California by the Spanish missionaries. It is now grown extensively in China, Japan and Syria, as well as in California.

The fruit of today is of increasingly better grade and taste. It has become remarkably popular.

The apricot belong to the peach family, but ripens at an earlier date. Apricots and peaches are known as "drupe" fruits. That is, they are fleshy fruits with hard seeds for stones. There are various varieties of apricots. The best known are the Alexander, Alexis, Early Golden, Harris, Moor Park and Tilton.

SPOIL QUICKLY

Apricots are grown in tropical countries, but are easily cultivated in California because of favorable soil and climate. Unfortunately the season for fresh apricots is a short one. Since their texture is delicate, they spoil quickly and are not easily shipped.

The dried apricot can be shipped with greater safety than the fresh fruit. The dried fruit retains most of the original rich color and delicious flavor. A great quantity is canned in California.

In Syria a paste is prepared from the apricot. This is made by stoning the fruit and mashing it in lage cement-lined basins. The paste is used extensively in this country for making jelly with apricot flavor and apricot syrup. It is also used as an ingredient in fruit drinks. The pits of peaches and apricots are sometimes included in the making of almond oil.

BUILD BLOOD CELLS

Apricots contain valuable mineral salts. The most important of these are potash, soda, lime, magnesium and iron. They are of value in building up red blood cells and aid in maintaining the normal alkaline reaction of the body. Because of their laxative properties, apricots are of value in stubborn cases of constipation and in overcoming faulty elimination.

Though the apricot contains little of nutritive value, it is a pleasing part of the diet. The coloring, juicy taste and delicious flavor aid in stimulating appetite and digestion. They may well be included in the diet.

FLOOD SWEEPS EAGLE PASS

EAGLE PASS, Tex., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—A surging yellow torrent overflowed the banks of the Rio Grande today, inundating streets in the Eagle Pass business district and part of the Mexican town of Piedras Negras.

Swollen by extraordinary rains, the river was rising at an estimated rate of three feet an hour. It was feared that the entire city would be flooded.

Several two-story buildings in the Eagle Pass business district collapsed as flood waters weakened their foundations.

Hundreds of residents of the low-lying section of Eagle Pass were carrying their household belongings to high ground and merchants were moving goods out of their stores.

18 FEARED DEAD IN SHELL BLAST

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—A munitions depot at Chitila blew up during the night, hurling shell fragments which wounded a number of inhabitants in that and nearby villages.

One soldier of the watch was known to have been killed and a later check disclosed that the entire guard of 16 soldiers and one officer was missing. It was feared that they also had perished.

The depot was destroyed by fire which blazed until early this morning.

Lackawanna Calls Enginemen to Work

ALCOHOL FOUND GOOD—AND BAD

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Alcohol has been found beneficial in treating some diseases but injurious in others by Dr. Harold E. Himwich and Dr. Louis H. Nahum, of Yale Medical School.

Results of their study showing that alcohol increases the acidity of the blood to points formerly believed incompatible with life were made public today here and at Rome, where Dr. Himwich read a paper at the international congress of the Federation of Societies for Experimental Biology.

Small doses of alcohol were found to be helpful in treating diabetes, for they counteract the effects of partially oxidized fatty acids. On the other hand, the research showed administration of alcohol to pneumonia patients delays recovery by increasing acidosis.

The "hangover" following intoxication, they concluded, is caused by the accumulation and persistence of lactic acid in the blood. This substance, which does not disappea as quickly as the alcohol, also is found after strenuous physical exercise and is believed responsible for a feeling of fatigue after hard work.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- BY SALLY MARTIN

Good Men Plentiful Despite Reports to Contrary

If the big boy cheats on her, should the little woman cheat on him?

That's what Peggy's friends are telling HER to do. When she was married she thought she'd found her ideal. She gave him all her faith and loyalty—went without things she needed, to help him, as she thought. And now—

"I feel as if no man is worth any loyalty," she sobs.

For she has found that she was pinching and scrimping SO THAT HE COULD AFFORD TO KEEP UP A LOVE NEST, and not because "business was bad," as he told her.

What'll she do now? Walk out on him—or keep on living under his roof, and do as he does?

Dear Sally—

Please help me. I feel as if the world has tumbled down around me.

I have been married three years to a man I thought was my ideal; BUT NOW I FEEL AS IF NO MAN IS WORTH ANY LOYALTY from any woman.

My first year with him was sweet, but then I found that I was married to a chronic liar. I have forgiven him so many times that I can't count them. My fault is that I expected a man and woman to take their vows seriously. I did, and I thought he did. I wanted my marriage to be something beautiful and clean.

But men only marry for a home where they can entertain their friends and then spice their lives with other women.

All of my husband's friends have a "girl" besides their wives. I have often heard them discuss them before me. But I never suspected HE was living a double life until last week, when I ran across a letter from his supposed mistress, saying that she needed money and must have it by a certain time or she would make public their little home life.

SACRIFICED FOR HIM

I was hurt, but I just waited to see if he'd make the appointment for the date she mentioned. He did. I gave him a chance to admit the truth, but he lied again. Now I hate him!

I have gone without so many things I needed, because "times were hard," and now TO THINK I WAS ONLY MAKING IT POSSIBLE FOR SOMEONE ELSE TO ENJOY THE MONEY HE HAD!

I have not left him. All my friends advise me to step out and enjoy myself, too, as wives in these modern times don't expect their husbands to be true to them. But I always thought that kind of thing was so cheap and common. Maybe I expect too much. So I want to know just what you think modern wives should do.

Should I go on as if nothing had happened, and get me a boy friend to play around with? I love to have a good time myself, but I have tried to be a good wife, and now I find it doesn't pay. Maybe you'll tell me there ARE good men, but I have not seen or met one. Please don't fail me. What shall I do? PEGGY.

PICKED WRONG MAN

Is THAT a true picture of modern marriage as YOU know it, Mr. Jones? Mrs. Brown?

Don't wives expect—and find—faith and loyalty in this year of 1932? I'll say they do! Plenty of it! FOR IN SPITE OF ALL REPORTS TO THE CONTRARY, THERE ARE PLENTY OF FINE, DECENT MEN, just as there are plenty of fine, decent women.

You simply married the wrong kind of man, Peggy. And since birds of a feather flock together, HE HAS FRIENDS JUST LIKE HIMSELF. But that doesn't prove that ALL men are like him, even if you haven't met any lately who are not.

And now what'll you do? Shall you sink just as low as he is and give him tit for tat? What for? Why wallow, yourself, because HE does?

No, youngster. GET OUT! You needn't two-time yourself even if he has set the example. Give yourself a new deal. I know you've had a bitter blow, but KEEP YOUR FAITH AND YOUR CLEAN IDEALS, CHILD. For there are plenty who will deserve all you give, IF YOU USE YOUR HEAD WHEN YOU'RE DOING YOUR PICKING.

Don't Mope; Try to Improve Your Place in Life, Fay King's Advice

By FAY KING

No time is more utterly wasted than that spent sitting around moping and lamenting your lot in life.

All it will get you is drooping mouth lines, and frown wrinkles in your forehead.

The thing to do is to spend that time improving yourself in the place you find yourself.

The humblest life can be made important and full of charm and dignity inspiring respect if it be made as perfect as possible.

Life may lift you to that exalted place you dream of, but you can lift your mind and personality to be worthy of it.

Correct your faults. Cultivate tact and patience. Be calm in spirit and manner.

Be your best wherever you are!

Some in high places are far from this.

Household Hints

When making jellies do not try to drain every bit of juice through the jelly bag. The more you squeeze the bag the cloudier the jelly will be when finished.

To prevent a cake from sticking, try greasing the tin and dusting it lightly with flour. As soon as the cake is taken from the oven place it in a damp cloth for a few minutes. It will then come out easily.

When linens or white goods have turned yellow, put a few drops of turpentine into the rinsing water and lay them on the grass in the strong sunlight. They will come out beautifully white.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Announcing the Betrothal

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to announce my engagement by giving a dinner for our families. What would you suggest as the simplest way of announcing our engagement to our friends.

2. Is it proper to send betrothal cards by mail? And when should they be sent, immediately after the dinner or at any time? W.

1. The simplest way is the best form for making this announcement; this is, telling your relatives, as you plan to do by this dinner, and then telling or writing your friends. If, for instance, your dinner is on Thursday, you would write notes of the happy announcement on Friday, and then perhaps your parents would like to make a formal announcement in the newspapers of Saturday or Sunday. This is all the announcement that there need to be, for this informs the people most definitely concerned.

2. Betrothal cards are not in good taste and are not used by the socially accustomed. The informal note is the better taste.

The Girl's Car

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for a girl, when she invites a young man to dance, to drive her own car to the dance, or should she let the young man hire a taxicab.

R.

This is just as she wishes, and just as she finds convenient. If it is thoroughly convenient for her to use her own car it would seem a generous thing to do, and I am sure that the young man would appreciate her thoughtfulness.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

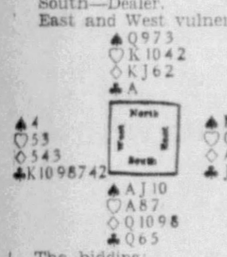
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Unblocking

Defense play at Contract is necessarily much more difficult than the play of the Dummy. Defensively, players are groping in the dark, and unless there is perfect co-ordination, they can not hope to realize the full defensive values of the cards they hold.

An excellent example of accurate defensive play, against a hand that was possibly slightly overbid, occurred recently in a rubber game at the Nelson Bridge Club in New York City. It required, on the part of the East player, who bore that burden of the defense, an immediate realization of the possibilities of his play in order that his partner's suit might be established and not blocked through his carelessness.

South—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1NT	Pass	3NT (1)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) The hand contains barely 3 honor-tricks and thus provides no leeway for unfavorable distribution, so this may be a slight overbid. However, had only two notrump been bid, South, in view of the score and his additional values, would undoubtedly have raised the contract to three.

Against the contract of three notrump, West opened the club 10, the top of his intermediate sequence in that suit. The Ace, of course, was played from Dummy, and East was now faced with the problem of defense—the necessity of unblocking. To play the 3 of clubs at this time, as many players would have been inclined to do, would have permitted South to make his contract, as he could then have scored three diamonds, three spades, one club and two hearts, and South, of course, would have had a game.

East, however, was both a thoughtful and careful player. He realized that the club Knave in his hand had no value. It fact, it might be a distinct detriment if, as was possible, his partner held a higher honor in the club suit, which must in this case be the King. Therefore, without hesitancy, he played the Knave under the Ace, and when South started the establishment of the diamond suit, he did not hesitate, but at once played the Ace and returned the club 3. South was helpless, and East and West were able to cash 1 diamond and 6 club tricks, and defeat the contract 3 tricks.

Had East failed to play the club Knave on the first lead of that suit, South, of course, would have followed the same line of play, as, indeed, he must in any instance. East, winning the first or second round of diamonds, would then have led the Knave, but South would have refused to cover, and the club suit would thus have been effectually shut out.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

South is dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	2♡	Pass
4♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

What should West lead, holding:

♠Q973 ♡95 ◇Q6 ♣AJ762

Answer: Spade 3. The conventional fourth-best lead is safest since it probably would prove more costly to disturb the minor suit holdings. A trump lead here would merely waste time.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Neck troubles—and almost every woman has them after the age of 50—aren't due to relaxed or lazy muscles, but are the direct result of accumulations of adipose tissues or lack of tone in the tissues that soft padding between the fibers and the skin. Fat can be worn away by massage, a picking up of the flesh, rolling between thumb and fingers, though every woman must understand the imperative need afterwards of ice applications or astringents. The fiddle-string neck requires gentle anointments with a heavy cream, cold compresses slapped on afterwards. The only exercise that is likely to bring results is a slow turning of the head from side to side with a strong muscle pull.

Give your hair the air. It needs ventilation, especially now that the finger wave keeps it smacked down flat to the scalp. The best time for airing and scalp friction is the night before shampoo when the wave is weak doesn't care what happens to it. Begin with a brushing, strand by strand, holding the hair straight up away from the head. Rub the scalp briskly, running the fingers through the hair as if they were the teeth of a comb. A bit of hot oil or tonic helps along the good work.

When applying hair tonic or hot oil to the scalp, use a large medicine dropper. Part the hair at various places, trickle the liquid along the parting.

Rapid reducing, by means of a starvation diet, sweets, starches and fats entirely deleted, will bring to the face of the reducer a wan, dispirited, hollow-eyed look. Won't do. All wrong! The figure may look better, but the face looks worse. Milk added to the diet that is low in fats, will supply nourishment that the body needs without adding an ounce to weight. The candidate for the slim shape can partake of lean meats, vegetables that grow above ground, green salads, clear soups and fish. She should substitute toasted rye bread for white bread and butter, take tea and coffee clear.

BLACKBERRY CORDIAL—Boil together for 15 minutes 1 quart blackberry juice, 1 pint white sugar and 1 tablespoon each of cloves, allspice, cinnamon and nutmeg. Pour the boiling liquid into clean, hot jars and seal at once.

* * *

CANNED LIMA BEANS—Carefully sort and grade for size and age. When shelling beans place the old ones into a separate lot for soup, and the young and tender ones into another assortment for extra fine pack. Boil young beans for 5 minutes and older beans for 10 minutes. Pack quickly and loosely into clean, hot jars to within 1 inch of top, add 1 level teaspoon salt to each quart, cover with cooking water, partly seal, and process for 3 hours in a hot-water bath or for 60 minutes in a steam pressure cooker at 10 pounds. Remove from canner and seal immediately.

* * *

TOMATO JUICE—Use firm, ripe tomatoes. Wash and remove stem end, discard any that show signs of decay. Chop and heat in a covered vessel until the juice flows freely. Strain the juice while hot into hot jars, add one teaspoon salt, completely seal and process for 20 minutes in a hot-water bath. If it is to be used for infant feeding, salt should be omitted. If a thicker juice is desired return the strained juice to the stove and boil it until it is reduced to one-half the original volume, and process as directed above.

* * *

CANNED BAKED APPLE—Wash and core sound, tart, baking apples. Fill the cavities with sugar to which a little cinnamon has been added. Place in a baking dish containing a little water. Bake in a hot oven until tender. Pack quickly into hot jars and cover with a hot syrup made with 1 part sugar to 1 part water. Partly seal, and process in a hot-water bath for 20 minutes.

Find the Source of Infection in Arthritis

Dr. Copeland

We are indebted in many ways to the painstaking and brilliant work of the research scientists. Recently they have brought about hope of a cure in arthritis. Although this is not a fatal disease, it is an uncomfortable one and has been considered as incurable. Until recent times it was a disabling ailment and considered practically hopeless.

Arthritis is an inflammation of one joint or of numerous joints of the body. It is usually met between the ages of 20 and 40. It may occur in individuals of any age, but is usually an affliction of "middle life."

It is now definitely believed to be due to an infection. This infection may be in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gallbladder or intestines or there may be some other focus of infection quite distant perhaps from the involved joint.

Arthritis is curable when the source of the infection can be determined and removed. This may be difficult to locate, but by means of the X-ray it is possible usually to determine where the infection exists. It is for this reason that complete X-ray study is advised in all cases of arthritis. The body and its parts should be subjected to a thorough X-ray examination.

In many cases the infection is found somewhere in the intestinal tract. When the intestine is the source of infection, it is usually in the colon, the large intestine. In these cases the diet must be regulated until regular eliminations are the rule. Enemas should be given whenever sluggishness persists.

Contrary to the common belief, acid fruits are not harmful in arthritis. The citrus fruits, such as the orange and grapefruit, contain acids. These acids are combined with soda and potash. When eaten, they are changed to bases and have an alkaline reaction. This neutralizes and overcomes the excess acid formation found in the body of sufferers from arthritis. For this reason melons are particularly valuable in this disease. Potatoes should be used freely.

In addition to regulation of the diet, it is important that faulty posture, failure of elimination and unhygienic methods of living be overcome. Moderate exercise and plenty of sunshine and fresh air must be included in the treatment of this disabling condition.

Bear in mind that infection anywhere in the body, as well as disorders of the intestinal and digestive systems, must be dealt with before relief can be expected. This can only be accomplished after a complete physical examination.

If you are a sufferer from this unpleasant ailment, do not set it down as a hopeless condition. In many cases relief can be obtained by the injection of certain medicines. This method of cure can only be administered by your physician.

MINERS READY TO BOLT UNION

GILLESPIE, Ill., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Leaders of Illinois coal miners opposing the new $5 wage contract, signed by union officials over their protest, today laid plans for rallying state-wide support in a movement for nullification of the agreement and for removal of union officials who signed it.

Substituting conference-room methods for the new pact which resulted in the siege of Taylorville two weeks ago and the attempted invasion of Franklin County last week to close mines operating under the new contract, the leaders in the fight against the reduced wage scale conferred with representatives from local unions throughout the state to adopt a program of concerted action.

Members of the protesting miners' policy committee, claiming support of more than half of the approximately 45,000 union miners in the state, said they were determined to set aside the new wage contract even if it meant breaking away from the United Mine Workers of America and forming their own union.

YORK, England, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—A new idea of what sleep really is—discovery that it seems to be controlled by the amount of iodine in the blood—was reported today to the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Thyroxin, the iodine-containing secretion of the thyroid gland, apparently is the sleep-controlling substance, said Dr. G. S. Carter. It does its work in reverse fashion from artificial sleep-producing drugs, however.

BUCS, REDS OPEN SERIES

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Late Cub Slide Unlikely. Yanks Approach Record Ruth May Lead Hitters. Wright to Play First. Another Negro Series. Clocking Ring Punches.

REPETITION OF 1930 SLIP IMPOSSIBLE

THOUGH NOTHING CAN be considered certain in baseball until it has been sewed up beyond the last possibility of a slip, the chance that the final Eastern trip may prove a factor to snatch the pennant out of the Cubs' grasp appears very remote. It is true that a long winning streak such as Chicago has enjoyed has a reaction sometimes, and it is not to be denied that the Bruins have been a poor road club, but that the sensational stride of Kiki Cuyler and his mates can be slowed down to such an extent as to cause them to lose the flag in the last 24 days of the race is hard to believe, strongly as Pittsburgh fans hope for it for the sake of the Pirates.

Kiki Cuyler

It will be recalled that the final Eastern trip DID knock Chicago out of first place in 1930. But the Cubs had a lead of only two and a half games when they started on the swing, and the loss of eight out of 14 games on the trip while St. Louis was winning 12 out of 15 enabled the Cards to pass them and finish the season two box scores in front. That showed a loss of four and a half games all told. The Cubs' present lead is wide enough to make it possible for them to lose more ground than that and yet retain the leadership. Besides they are going better than in 1930, and there is no outstanding rival club like the Cards of that year to stage a terrific drive in the home-stretch.

HAVING BROKEN THEIR own best record of 128 games without being shut out, the Yankees are now close to setting a new all-time major league mark for that sort of performance. They will reach that goal if they get through their games of today and tomorrow with the Senators without being blanked.

The existing record for consecutive games played in one season without a shutout is 132, set by the Boston and Philadelphia Nationals in 1894. The full length of a schedule then was only 132 games, and both clubs escaped being whitewashed. The Yanks now have 131 to their credit. The standing shows only 130, but the Detroit game of August 1, on which a protest was allowed, counts in the records.

IF THE YANKEES go through the full season without being zeroed, they will erase a modern record that was first set by the Pittsburgh club. That was the playing of a complete season with only one shutout, since the schedule was extended beyond 132 games.

The Pirates of 1901, Pittsburgh's first pennant winners were held runless only once, losing a 1-to-0 game to the Phillies on July 1. The Yankees of 1927 were the only club to equal that record.

PERHAPS BABE RUTH will not overtake Jimmy Foxx in the home-run race, but evidently he is going to make a determined effort to beat out the Mackian clouter for the American League batting title. He was only 12 points behind today. Ruth led the league in hitting only once, in 1924, with .378. To suggestions that he could do it again if he would change his batting style slightly and try to send short hits to left field, he always replied "I'm paid to hit home runs." But of late Ruth appears to have changed his policy, with a view to getting more hits and fattening the old average. Several times he has shifted in the batter's box and deliberately hit late to punch the ball to left field, and only a few days ago he actually laid down a bunt and beat it out.

Glenn Wright

THE BROOKLYN CLUB next spring will try an experiment with Glenn Wright that a number of Pittsburgh fans advocated while the big shortstop was a Pirate and was having trouble with an old ankle injury. The plan is to turn the player into a first baseman.

It is said that Wright, on account of a lame throwing arm, can no longer be a regular shortstop, and that Manager Carey will give him a thorough trial around first base in the hope of prolonging his major league career. Carey doesn't want to let Wright go, if it can be avoided. The two are warm friends. The Cards tried to get Glenn last spring, but Carey refused to trade him. The purchase of Dick Seibert, Dayton (O.) first sacker, will not affect the plan to try Wright at the position in the spring.

ANOTHER SPECIAL SERIES between Negro baseball clubs has been arranged as an extra attraction for local fans. The Pittsburgh Crawfords will battle it out with the Monroe (La.) club, which made a spectacular finish in the Southern Negro League.

The Crawfords were associated with this league in the first part of the season, but played independent ball in the second half. The first game of the series will be played at Greenlee Field tomorrow evening at 5:15 o'clock; the second on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and there will be two games on Labor Day at 11 a. m. and 5:15 p. m.

THE MERE ANNOUNCEMENT that William R. Coe had turned down Warren Wright's offer of $75,000 for Ladysman did not show how highly Coe values the sensational 2-year-old colt. The owner declares that $150,000 will not buy Ladysman; that most of his other horses are for sale, but that if he were to sell out his racing establishment, farm, stable and all, he would not part with the juvenile stake winner. Coe is confident that Ladysman will earn close to $150,000 before the present season is over, and that he will come back as a 3-year-old next year to have a fine chance for the Derby, Preakness, Classic, Belmont and other rich stakes.

THERE WAS A return to earlier days in boxing in California this week when the Olympic in Los Angeles put on a complete card of four-round bouts. The same promoter, Jack Doyle, started the four-round game when 20-round bouts were banned after the death of Bull Young in 1913.

On the last four-round card he held in the old days, Doyle presented the oddity of a Chinese boxer and, strangely enough, there was another on this week's bill in the person of Ah Wing Lee, a lightweight with a college pedigree. He attended University of Oregon for three years.

IN ANNOUNCING THE wholesale slashing of ticket prices for the University of Chicago's football games this fall, Coach A. A. Stagg says alumni and friends were loyal to the Chicago team in more prosperous times and now the school wants to enable them to continue coming to the games by establishing a scale in keeping with present conditions.

A season book, good for a sideline seat at each of Chicago's six home games, may be purchased for $5, or an average of 84 cents per game. Single tickets for the Indiana, Purdue, Illinois and Wisconsin games cost $1.50 apiece, and the Monmouth and Knox games may be seen for $1.

Jack (Kid) Berg

DID YOU EVER estimate the number of blows started or landed in the average main bout? When Stan Loayza and Harry Carleton met in West Springfield, Mass., recently, punch clockers were used at the ringside, and the tally showed that Loayza started 802 blows in the 10 rounds, while Carleton's total was 767. Of course, not all of these punches landed. Loayza let go 150 in the seventh round. His average of 80 per round was high, but Eastern critics say it did not compare with the mark set by Jack (Kid) Berg in his first fight with Kid Chocolate. It was a dull round when Berg failed to throw more than 150 gloves at his opponent. His arms pumped away for the full three minutes of every round, Berg starts more blows than any other present-day fighter.

HIGHLAND STAR BEATEN BY CRUICKSHANK

BULLETIN.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, Cal., shot a 34, two under par, to take a 2 up lead over Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y., at nine oles of their 36-hole quarter-final professional golf championship match today. Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., and Al Collins, Kansas City, were all squared through nine holes. Bobby Cruickshank was 1 up over Frank Walsh through the sixth. Ralph Stonehouse, Indianapolis, was leading Tom Creavy, Albany, N. Y., the defending champion, 1 up through the third.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The turbulent struggle for the National Professional Golf championship boomed over the quarter-final front today with the defending titleholder, a trio of noted contenders and a brigade of dark horses fighting on.

Tom Creavy, of Albany, N. Y., was in the big scrap after a great comeback in his second round match against Johnny Perelli, San Francisco putting genius, and with him were such stars of the professional world as Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, Cal.; Big Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., and Wee Bobbby Cruickshank, of New York.

Frank Walsh, of Chicago, a well known marksman, was there, too, but was classed among the long shots because of his absence from strenuous competition because of a serious accident last winter. Grouped with him in the field of outside chances were Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y., Al Collins, of Kansas City, who felled Johnny Golden, of Noroton, Conn., in yesterday's classic upset, and Ralph Stonehouse, of Indianapolis, foe of the champion in today's quarter-final battle over 36 holes.

Vincent Eldred, professional of the Highland Country Club, Pittsburgh, who shot brilliant golf to defeat Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., in the opening round, was eliminated from the competition by Bobby Cruickshank, 3 and 1. Eldred's consistency in missing short putts was solely responsible for his defeat. Eldred had a 38-39—77 for the morning.

Eldred took a 40 in the outgoing nine of the afternoon play, while Cruickshank garnered a 37. Bobby maintained this lead and finished the match on the seventeenth hole.

Creavy won the most exciting match from the gallery standpoint yesterday by coming back to win three of the four final holes, but it was Collins who tossed in the biggest bombshell. Coming to the tournament almost unknown, the Kansas City professional has just crashed his way into the quarter-finals. He started out by scoring an eagle on the thirty-sixth hole of the qualifying round to get a chance in the play-off and he beat a host of stars like Billy Burke, Harry Cooper and Tommy Armour in the extra hole "sudden death" battle by reeling off a birdie on the extra hole. Following through, he defeated Gunnar Nelson, of Rockford, Ill., 6 and 5, in the first round match and then outgamed and outshot Johnny Golden, of Noroton, Conn., in a great fight yesterday, 1 up, by kissing off a partial stymie on the thirty-sixth green.

TOMORROW: A DUST PARADOX.

FRENCH, RIXEY SLATED FOR SLAB DUEL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Cincinnati Reds came to town today to disport themselves in the two games with the Pirates. The fast-waning home season will come to a close on Labor Day, when the Cardinals come here to help drop the curtain.

The first clash with the Reds, set for this afternoon, is likely to bring a duel of lefthanders. Eppa Jeppa Rixey, who started to pitch about the time Larry French came into this world, is expected to face the young Bucco southpaw.

Rixey's feats of the long summer have been almost solely confined to his heckling of the Pirates. The tall Virginian has won four verdicts over the Buccos without having felt the sting of defeat. Rixey ties our many left-hand hitters into knots with his dopey offerings, and he still owns enough speed to cross up the boys occasionally. The righthander hitters also seem to be pie for the veteran.

SMITH IMPRESSIVE

Pitcher Hal Smith, recently purchased by the Pirates from the Kansas City club of the American Association, will frolic in a big league suit today. The big recruit reached town yesterday and his appearance indicated he could go to the slab in an hour's notice.

Smith makes a quick impression by his physique. The young fellow is well above the six-foot mark, but he carries no extra poundage; in fact he is built along greyhound lines. Manager Gibson was anxious to see him under fire and it is likely he will twirl in one of the four remaining games at the Oakland Orchard.

Shortstop Floyd Vaughan is about ready to play, but he may rest for another day.

MAY EXPERIMENT

It is likely other young players will join the club before it leaves for the last Eastern trip. The arrival of September makes it possible for the various clubs to take on 15 extra players. There is no chance that the Pirates will assume the limit, but it would be wise for them to look at a few prospects now rather than next Spring.

William E. Benswanger, president of the club, arrived home from Manchester, N. H., where he had been in attendance at the American Legion baseball tournament. Benswanger and Gibson are likely to confer on new players today and tomorrow.

Ladies' Day will be observed this afternoon. It will be the last event of this kind of the year.

SOCCER LEAGUE ORGANIZED

With 20 teams on hand, the West Penn Soccer Football Commissioners had quite a time selecting two leagues for the Panhandle district at the Bridgeville Owls Club last night.

It finally was decided to have a Class A loop, and a Class B circuit, with the following strong teams of last season selected to compose Class A:

Steubenville, Moon Run, Shannon McKnights, Sturgeon, McGraths, of Overbrook; Houston, Grove A. C., Primrose, East Carnegie, and Gladden.

The Beadling Juniors, Coverdale, Cuddy, Bridgeville and Heidelberg Juniors teams were chosen to compose the Class B loop.

The Heidelberg team of last season did not enter the Class B league, and it may apply for admission to the Keystone League when that circuit convenes at the Bridgeville Owls Club tonight.

CHICAGO MAY LAND STEFFEN

Despite skepticism on the part of his friends here that he would accept the position, it would not be surprising if Judge Walter P. Steffen, advisory coach of football at Carnegie Tech, should succeed A. A. Stagg, veteran coach of the University of Chicago gridders, when the latter steps down at the end of the 1932 season.

Reports from Chicago have it that Steffen an all-America quarterback under Stagg, and Pat Page, Stagg's present assistant, are the most likely men to succeed him.

The selection of Steffen would prove popular with the public in Chicago and also with the alumni of the Maroons. He has been mentioned for years as the ultimate successor to Stagg, in view of his fine success during the years he was head coach at Tech. The only barrier to his acceptance now would be his judicial duties. All of the Big Ten coaches are employed on a year-round basis.

Steffen is due here next Wednesday to assist Coach Bob Waddell in inaugurating football practice at Carnegie.

STAGG TO RETURN

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Amos Alonzo Stagg, head coach at the University of Chicago, will retire from football at the end of this season, it was learned from a reliable source here yesterday.

Stagg, who has coached the Chicago teams for the past 41 years, will remain at the school as athletic director, however.

Walley Steffen, the advisory coach at Carnegie Tech, and Pat Page, present assistant coach under Stagg, were named as Stagg's possible successors.

Hitchcock Receives Top Polo Ranking

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Tommy Hitchcock has become the only 10-goal player in international polo.

He shared that distinction for some time with Capt. C. T. I. Roark, of Great Britain, but Roark's handicap was cut to nine goals recently by the Hurlingham Handicap Committee, ruling body of polo in England.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The two latest additions to the local boxing colony, Frankie Goosby, Negro welterweight, and Johnny Datto, Filipino lightweight, both started their careers in California . . . Their fathers wanted them to go to college and get a good education, but the boxing lure was too strong . . . Goosby never has lost a bout and has scored 31 knockouts in 47 battles . . . He started out as a pupil of Young Jack Thompson, twice holder of the world welterweight title, and Baby Joe Gans, two great Negro boxers, both of whom were handled by Cherokee Tom Cox, who is here with Goosby . . . Datto has been boxing some 10 years against the best in the featherweight and lightweight classes . . . He says all opponents in the ring are tough . . . "They all have two fists and you have to watch yourself," is the way he puts it.

Mark Koenig

Johnny Datto

Datto is best remembered here for his three battles in one season against Jackie Rodgers at Motor Square Garden . . . The first two were classics, the third a disappointment . . . All drew large gates . . . I asked him if he thought Rodgers, one of the best drawing cards Pittsburgh has produced, was a great fighter at his best . . . "No," Datto replied frankly, "but he was dangerous at all times . . . He was a bit too slow to be a great fighter, but he could box and he fought in splurges, and he could hit, and you had to be on your guard against him."

Carl Olson, the new Pitt track coach, ought to go a long way in his new post . . . He knows his sport from all angles, has personality and apparently is a great teacher, although he admits he was only a mediocre performer himself in his days as an athlete . . . It is a paradox of sports that great performers seldom make great coaches, and, on the contrary, ordinary athletes often gain a knack of imparting the fine points of their sport to others . . . Perhaps the reason is that the man of limited ability works harder to gain success and learns more about the secrets of perfection than the performer who finds it easy to excel and therefore does not have to grind to learn the fundamentals . . . Olson's record of achievement as a coach is phenomenal.

Wouldn't it be funny if Mark Koenig, discarded by the Yankees as washed up and now one of the hardest hitters in the Cubs' array, should prove a stumbling block for the New York team in the world series next month? . . . Stranger things have happened, and it is no novelty for a discarded baseball ghost to come back and haunt the club that released him.—HARRY KECK.

Max Baer, Carnera Sought for Bout

ST. PAUL, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Negotiations for a bout between Max Baer, California heavyweight, and Primo Carnera, were under way today.

Carnera, last night, won a newspaper decision over Art Lasky, Minneapolis, in 10 rounds.

Humbert Fugazy, Brooklyn promoter, then announced he was after Carnera's services for a 12 or 15-round bout with Baer to be fought at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, September 28.

SCHADE NAMED COACH

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 2.—Charley F. Schade, who coached at Mt. Lebanon Junior High School for the past two years, was named coach of the Mars High School eleven yesterday, succeeding Bill Cribbs, former Grove City star. Schade was a former Slippery Rock State Teachers star.

RISKO DEFEATS LEVINSKY

CLEVELAND, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Age and experience upset youth as Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, was awarded a 12-round decision over King Levinsky, of Chicago, here last night.

Never at any time during the sluggish proceedings did either gladiator approach a knockdown or score a truly damaging blow and a crowd of nearly 20,000 persons in the big stadium howled in disapproval as the verdict was announced, later changing their boos to cheers. The two judges cast their votes for Risko, but Referee Matt Brock favored Levinsky.

Risko was too crafty and too fast for the former Chicago fish peddler, who at all times kept boring in but usually was unable to land cleanly on the bobbing Baker Boy.

The King put on a fast finish in the twelfth round and several times just missed connecting his lethal right to Johnny's jaw.

The early part of the match was pretty much give and take, but after the sixth round Risko's body attack and punishing left began to take effect. Johnny forced the fighting most of the way, outboxing Levinsky, who showed a willingness to mix but could not fathom the Risko defense. The King had the better of the infighting and once, in the third, inflicted severe punishment when he caught Johnny in a corner.

The Associated Press score sheet gave Risko seven rounds, Levinsky four and one even. The victory was Risko's second over Levinsky. He beat him at Boston last year.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Well, friends, I'm massaging my trigger finger and getting my typewriter fitted to a holster, because the National end of the world series will be in Chicago.

Nick Altrock

And what could be sweeter in a year like this than a New York - Chicago series with 60,000 to 80,000 attendance for every game (if Capone's boys don't muscle in through the pass gate), Joe McCarthy, ex-manager of the Cubs, leading his Yankee lads back in revenge formatic and Wrigley vs. Ruppert—yup, gum vs. beer—fighting it out like regular millionaires.

That world series will sure be bloody enough, but compared with a Yankee-Dodgers series it will seem like disarmament and perpetual peace.

DUNLAP STARS AS U. S. WALKER CUP LEAD GROWS

GEORGE SHOOTS RECORD 66, IS 10 UP

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 2.—George Dunlap, Jr., East Orange, N. J., one of the baby members of the team, blazed a dazzling trail for the rest of the Americans to follow through the Walker Cup matches this morning by shooting an almost unbelievable 33-33—66 to break the course record at Brookline by one stroke and finish 10 up on Eric Moruvie, his English opponent.

And follow this broad, inviting trail the Americans did, for of the eight singles matches this morning, they were "up" in six of them and "down" in none, two matches finishing all square at 18 holes.

ONLY THREE WINS NEEDED

This performance, added to the sweep of the foursomes yesterday for a 4-to-0 lead overnight, practically assured America of the cup for another span of years.

They need only three victories to make this official and Dunlap's, barring a miracle, is already established. And speaking of miracles, his record of six birdies over a stretch of nine holes through the middle of the match, was little short of miraculous. In all he got seven birdies during the round of 66, which eclipsed the record of Rodney Brown by one stroke. It is understood, however, that Brown did not play from the back tees in making his score.

NO AMERICAN TRAILS

The rest of the returns this morning were:

Francis Ouimet, America, finished the morning round 1 up on Tony Torrance, England.

Jesse Sweetser, America, finished 2 up on John Stout, England.

Gus Moreland, America, and Rex Hartley, England, were all square.

Charley Seaver, America, finished 4 up on Eric Fiddian, England.

George Voigt, America, and Leonard Crawley, England, finished all square.

Maurice McCarthy, America, finished 1 up on Lister Hartley, England.

Jack Westland, America, finished 3 up on John Burke, England.

Dunlap's round, after a bitter experience of a missed putt at the first hole, was a succession of biting, sharply accurate irons to the flag. His profusion of birdies came this way, except for the ninth, where he sank his 20-footer. His two at the twelfth was perfection, a high, arching iron to the pin and a four-foot putt. But this mastery of the irons deserted him for once at the eighteenth, where his shot from the fairway faded off the green and his chip was 15 feet from the hole. But he thereupon capped the climax of a great round by sinking the putt.

OUIMET RALLIES

Ouimet, 3 down to Torrance at the ninth, had to rouse himself and come on with a characteristic Ouimet rush to square the match at the fourteenth and go finally in front on the home green. Each had a 76.

Sweetser and Stout played picnic golf all the way, the former having a 79 and Stout an 80. Moreland, getting his baptism of international play, stood up well under the relentless pounding of the more experienced Rex Hartley, the latter showing some of his real ability to score a 73. So close was the going in this match that only seven of the 18 holes were halved. Seaver, lacking control around the greens, had an easy time with Fiddian, who, except for the last three holes, was consistently bad and took an 83.

ITALIAN BOXERS WIN

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Italy's Olympic boxing team continued its barnstorming tour with a 6-to-2 victory over the Virginia Golden Gloves' fighters here last night. Al Beatty, featherweight, and Jimmy Jones, welter, both of Baltimore, were the only point scorers for the Golden Glovers, who went outside the state to recruit scrappers. Jones punched out a close decision over Luciano Fabbroni and Beatty in his bout with Gaspare Alessandri won a clean-cut decision.

DORMONT BEATS THOMAS CLUB

SANDLOT GAMES TODAY

CITY LEAGUE
Book vs. J. L. Thomas, Greenlee Field.

INDEPENDENT GAMES
Soho McKnights at Immaculate Heart.
Dormont vs. Crawfords at Connellsville.

The Dormont Club, defending champion of the City League, upset the dope last evening by defeating the J. L. Thomas nine, of Bloomfield, to send Thomas and Book into a playoff for the second-half league title. The game was played at Greenlee Field, and a large crowd watched the former champions nose out the Bloomfielders by a 1-to-0 score.

The playoff date will be decided this evening at Greenlee Field. Should Book team win they will have both half titles, but should the Thomas club prove successful, then they will be the second-half champions, and thus qualify to meet Book in the post-season series.

Red Whitmore was on the mound for the winners and allowed five hits. Johnny Miller twirled for Thomas and was nicked for just three bingles. Pete Mervosh's wild throw paved the way for the winning run in the seventh inning.

Tomorrow the Crawfords open their Negro world series with the Monroe club. The teams also will meet on Labor Day.

Two no-hit, no-run games were turned in last evening. Pitcher Griffen, of the Soho McKnights, struck out eight batters as he whitewashed the Fox A. C., 6-0, in six innings, while Ralph (Lefty) Mellix, hurling for the Eighteenth Ward Traders, figured in a seven-inning no-hit game when he blanked the Frieds, 6-0.

The Books defeated Grandview, 8-3.

British Golfer's Wild Shot Dents Walker Cup

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Leonard Crawley, the golfer, may not be able to win the Walker Cup for England, but nobody can say that he hasn't made an impression.

Playing to the eighteenth green in his match with George Voigt this morning, Crawley carried so far beyond the original target that the ball fell among the spectators on the club house lawn and hit the Walker Cup itself with a resounding smack.

Crawley ultimately lost the hole and the match was squared, but the renowned trophy now owns a perfectly good dent it didn't have before.

HOCKEY LEASE SIGNING NEAR

George Funk, architect who supervised the building of the new Madison Square Garden in New York and the Arena in Boston, today is inspecting Duquesne Garden with an eye to increasing the seating capacity to 7,000. He was brought here by Attorney James F. Callahan, president of the local National Hockey League club.

It is planned to use the old balcony for boxes, and to tear out the stage and bandstand so additional seats may be placed at the ends of the rink.

Bill Dwyer, owner of the New York Americans, another National League entry, said to have a financial interest in the local franchise, is expected here this afternoon, at which time it is likely the local club will be granted a lease on the Garden by the Philadelphia Company, its owner.

NORDY HOFFMAN AIDS LAYDEN WITH DUKES

By JESS CARVER

We'd all be up in the old do-re-mi if we had a dollar for every pound of heft the Durable Dukes are sweating off as they toil up there under the blazing sun on their Bluff practice field. Coach Elmer Layden and his able assistant, Joe Bach, aided and abetted by a surprise helpmate in Nordi Hoffman, All-America guard at Notre Dame last fall, put the 36-men Duquesne varsity through two grueling drills yesterday, and will continue to give them two doses of practice per day until the last of next week.

The Dukes reported in fine physical condition, every member of the invited caste, save one, being on hand for yesterday's workouts. The lone exception was Jim McDonald, the sophomore halfback hope, who developed a sudden attack of tonsilitis and has been rendered hors de combat for a week or so.

FRESHMEN SQUAD LARGE

Bach and Hoffman took the linemen yesterday and Layden the backs and went directly to work. Bud Divinney, Doc Skender, Maesh Silverstein and Biff Donnelli, former star performers on Duquesne elevens, assisted with the handling of the men, the last four named working with the horde of freshmen candidates. Freshmen footballers were as thick on the Bluff yesterday as ants at a picnic.

Little effort was made to separate the wheat from the chaff; the sheep from the goats or the froth from the brew yesterday, but the mentors will watch closely the actions and reactions of the yearlings today. The present squad of some three score must be cut to 25 men. It looks like the old pruning knife will be worked overtime.

Sil Zaninelli, big, hard-hitting fullbacker, who crashed through as a sophomore last year in fine style, reported weighing less than 200 pounds yesterday and by the time the afternoon drill was over and the tired and panting heroes had dragged themselves to the showers, he'd lost seven or eight pounds additional. If Zaninelli comes through again, he'll provide the big punch for the backfield. He'll have to step, however, for from last year's freshman team comes Big Jake Strutt, Mingo Junction's gift to the Red and Blue cause, a promising looking lad, weighing close to 190 pounds, 5 feet 10 inches tall and fast and clever. Zaninelli will have to keep up on his footsies all the time.

HOFFMAN HELPS WITH LINE

Hoffman, visiting friends here, will remain with the Dukes for three or four days before returning to South Bend, where he is to serve as line coach under Hunk Anderson this fall. Notre Dame does not open its practice campaign until September 15. The Irish, playing against Big Ten elevens, are not permitted to get down to work before their conference opponents, who do not hoist the curtain until that time.

Mrs. Opal Hill, of Kansas City, and Rena Nelson, of Chicago, tied for second place at 329, and were scheduled for an 18-hole playoff for the position today.

OUTBOARD RACE LURES SCIONS OF WEALTH

By STEVE HEALEY
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Competing against a galaxy of the nation's best outboard pilots, representing the world champions in all divisions, and the premier speed kings of the sport, will be seven millionaire's sons who have entered the Central Divisional outboard championships being sponsored by the Chicago Herald and Examiner, to be decided on the World's Fair lagoon on Sunday, September 18.

These young men, born with the traditional silver spoons in their mouths, will be just ordinary, oil smeared, dungaree-clad speed demons that will race bow to bow with a collection of other drivers from every walk of life.

Once the veteran speed king, Gar Wood, drops his flag and they roar down the first lap, all class distinction ends.

The moneyed young men who will lend their blue-blooded support to this giant outboard regatta curiously enough represent divers forms of business.

HEINZ HEADS LIST

Leading the list is Rust Heinz, son of the pickle king.

Detroit will be represented by Henry B. Joy, Jr., son of the former president of the Packard company.

George Coleman, son of the Florida oil magnate, will represent the 'gator state and is entered in three events.

Horace Tennes will be the Chicago representative and is prepping his boat for this event at his Eagle River lodge.

In the town of Dayton, O., the largest department store is owned by Elder & Johnson, and the son of R. J. Johnson, R. J., Jr., will be entered to represent Ohio in the amateur events.

MILLIKEN FAVORITE

St. Louis has many drivers entered, but, strangely enough, they are pinning their big hopes on the showing of J. T. Milliken, who is also a social registerite from Missouri. J. T. is the son of the now deceased J. T. Milliken, president of the giant chemical works that bore his name.

The last one on the list hails from Milwaukee and is Dick Harvey. Dick is the young man who recently inherited a fortune and immediately sallied forth to buy a new boat, motor and trailer. The new outfit will receive its baptism when it slips down the ways into the World's Fair lagoon in the Herald and Examiner regatta.

NOTE—Pittsburgh district motor boat drivers who desire to compete in the Central Division championships at Chicago may send their entries to the sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, who will forward them to the officials in charge.

WALD, BOOTH WIN COUNTY PARKS DOUBLES LAURELS

JACK REDMOND, MAITS BEATEN IN FINAL

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Harry Wald, former University of Pittsburgh star, and Bradford Booth, former Harvard star, were crowned doubles champions of the South County Park tournament today when they defeated Jack Redmond, of P. A. A., and Charley Maits, of the University Club, in the final round, 1-6, 6-0, 6-2.

The two doubles teams qualified for the final round yesterday when they triumphed in semi-final matches. Maits and Redmond defeated Don Dixon and Henry Ackerman, 6-2, 7-9, 6-3, while Oscar and Maurice Saperstein fell before Wald and Booth, 6-1, 9-7.

Quite an elaborate Labor Day week-end tennis card is scheduled in the district. Local tennis luminaries will compete in tourneys at Morgantown and Ambridge. Morgantown is the scene of the fourth annual invitation tournament, while the annual Beaver Valley championship will be decided at Ambridge. Both events get under way tomorrow.

LOCALS AT MORGANTOWN

More than 50 aspirants, including nearly a score from Western Pennsylvania, break into battle at Morgantown. Among the Pittsburghers entered are Dr. John O'Loughlin, first ranking Steel Citian; brother Billy O'Loughlin, who last Sunday copped the Southern Pennsylvania crown from Frank Broida; Broida himself; Bob Lampus and Bud Leyda, Shannopin satellites; Russ Unger, Eddie Alcorn, Neal Rumsey, and John Brown, Frank Smith and Andy Smeaton, Edgewood contenders; Harry Wald, runnerup to Broida for the Pittsburgh Parks title last month; Howard Moore, and Paul Sullivan, of the P. A. A.

Don Snyder and perhaps Dillinger Hixson will carry Greensburg colors, while Wright Hugus and Howard and Bunny Corcoran aim to represent Wheeling. Fred Selby, former Wooster College captain, will attend from Martins Ferry, while Alex Keiles, John Latona, Price Covil and Roger Kirkpatrick will be on deck from Baltimore. Whether or not Dooley Mitchell, 1930 and 1931 singles victor, will return to defend his challenge bowl is problematical, but hope is held for his arrival. B. F. Arkle, Wheeling flash and 1929 winner, is still out of the picture with an injured back sustained in the Westmoreland County tilting at Greensburg on July 4.

O'LOUGHLIN IN SINGLES

Meanwhile Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, Winged Head net boss, is at Forest Hills today brushing up his strokes on turf ere taking on Takeo Kuwabara, second ranking Japanese Davis Cup player, in the inaugural bracket of the fifty-first National Men's Singles competition tomorrow.

The summary of the County Parks tournament follows:

Golfers Called Off Course for Diamond Hunt

TOWANDA, Pa., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—They hunted for diamonds—and found them—on the course of the Towanda Country Club yesterday.

While playing a round of golf, Mrs. D. R. Lamont, of New York City, lost two rings which she valued at more than $2,000. As soon as he heard of the loss Caddiemaster James Bowles stopped all play on the course and started his 18 available caddies on a hunt. Two hours later both rings were found, caddies were liberally rewarded and play was resumed.

WEST NETTERS BEAT EAST

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Individually and collectively, Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill proved too much for picked tennis stars of the Atlantic seabord in the annual East-West series, completed yesterday.

This crack California pair, winners last week of the National doubles title, accounted for three of the four victories the West achieved to win the series, 5 matches to 4.

After each had won his singles match, Vines beating Sidney Wood, 6-2, 4-6, 8-6, and Gledhill upsetting Gregory Mangin, 6-3, 7-5, they paired up in doubles to beat Wood and Mangin, 6-4, 6-4, in the final and decisive battle of the competition. The other western victory of the day was won by Lester Stoefen, who defeated Davey Jones, 7-5, 0-6, 6-3.

The East, which had gained a 2-1 lead on the opening day's play Wednesday, won only two matches on the concluding day's program. Manuel Alonso defeated Joseph Coughlin, 6-2, 6-3, while Frank Shields and John Van Ryn defeated Elbert Lewis and Jack Tidball in doubles, 6-4, 6-2.

AL DUNN NAMED BURNS COACH

The initial meeting of the Dan Burns football club, of New Kensington, was held last night. Manager Grafton Sullivan was in charge of the session, and announced that Al Dunn, the popular valley coach, will have charge of the team on the field this season.

Dunn did wonders with the club last season, and with wing material available this season, Dunn expects the team to go places in the Western Pennsylvania Conference.

Coach Dunn has called his first practice session for Sunday afternoon at Memorial Park and the following players are requested to attend: Stanley Berkman, Willoughby, Temario, Murcurio, and Barbero.

Labor Day Meet In Mt. Oliver Pool

An elaborate program of swimming events is scheduled for Labor Day afternoon at the Mt. Oliver pool. One of the feature events will be an exhibition by the three Schmieler brothers, Joe, George and Johnny, three of the best swimmers in the district.

Bathing beauty contests for children and grownups will be held in the afternoon, with suitable prizes going to the winners. These contests will be open to entries outside of Mt. Oliver.

Swimming and diving contests will be staged for youngsters and adults throughout the afternoon and evening.

Two water basketball games will be played in the evening. The junior and senior teams of Mt. Oliver and Carrick will be the contestants. The games will get under way at 7 o'clock.

Critchlow Advances At Meadville

MEADVILLE, Pa., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—W. S. Critchlow, defending champion, was in the semi-finals of the annual Crawford County amateur golf tournament at Conneaut Park today.

Critchlow gained this round by virtue of his victory over E. W. Jacobson, of Hartford, Conn., by a 5 and 3 score. Critchlow will meet C. Y. Hays, of Carnegie Tech, in today's competition, while Jack Hicks, Meadville, engages H. W. Van Matre, of Cambridge, in the other match.

Ferrell to Stay With Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Wesley Ferrell, star pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, will continue to play with the team after his 10 days' suspension without pay for insubordination in Boston, has expired, it was announced yesterday.

In a communication to Cleveland newspapers, Alva Bradley, president of the Indians, denied Ferrell would be sold or traded. He said:

"Ferrell is not for sale or trade, as newspaper stories have indicated. After the 10 days' suspension has expired he will play for Cleveland according to our manager's instructions."

Athletics Release Outfielder Jones

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Johnny Jones, who lost his outfielder job with Albany when the Eastern League disbanded, and got another with the Athletics, while watching a game as a paying spectator, was released outright today by Connie Mack.

Johnny was hired the day Roger Cramer broke his ankle in action, shortly before the Mackmen were to start on a road trip. He failed to see much action, because Mule Haas worked efficiently in Cramer's place.

STOCK MARKET MAKES BROAD ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—A broad advance, centering in the steel and railroad issues, swept the stock market steadily higher in moderately active trading today.

Many traders had already left town for the week-end, and bulls who were convinced that Labor Day might mark an important turning point in general business activity evidently had the market largely to themselves.

The hard coal railroads were again buoyant, gains of 4 to 6 points appeared in Lackawanna, Lehigh, Reading and Delaware and Hudson. Issues up 2 to 4 points included United States Steel common and preferred, Gulf States Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Crucible Steel, Inland Steel, Illinois Central, Santa Fe, Louisville and Nashville, American Telephone, American Can, Public Service of New Jersey, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Case, Coca-Cola, Hershey and others. Advances of a point or so oppeared throughout many groups, including motors, coppers, oils, utilities, rails, and more particularly, the steels. Such issues as Gulf States, Ludlum, Inland, Republic, Sloss-Sheffield and American Steel Foundries reaching new highs for 1932.

Firmness of steel scrap prices in the Youngstown area, reports of quickening steel operations in the Birmingham area, and a news ticker estimate that operations in the Youngstown district would be doubled next week, contributed to extraordinarily broad forward movement in the steel issues. Sentiment, which had been sobered somewhat by the midweek survey of Iron Age, was boosted several notches. Iron Age had placed ingot output for this week at 13 per cent of capacity, and remarked that current indications were for rather small gains in September.

The week-end mercantile reviews contributed to the bullishness, reporting further seasonal improvement in wholesale trade, and continued spread of optimism. Continued strength of commodities, notably cotton, also aided the bull cause. The Annalist Weekly Commodity Price Index showed a substantial gain.

Rail shares were helped by estimates that the weekly freight car loadings report to appear tomorrow would show a large gain.

COTTON STEADY AND HIGHER

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Cotton futures opened very steady, 23-28c higher in response to firmer Liverpool cables and crop complaints from Texas. October, 8.55; December, 8.67; January, 8.75; March, 8.85; May, 8.96; July, 9.03.

Southern selling and realizing was readily absorbed and by the end of the first half hour December was up to 8.82 with the general list showing net advances of about 40 to 43 points.

The early advance met considerable realizing and some southerly selling, but offerings were absorbed on reactions of 10 or 12 points and the market held fairly steady later in the morning. December contracts after selling off from 8.82 to 8.71 were ruling around 8.75 at midday or about 36 points net higher.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 2.—Cotton—Receipts, 9,000 bales; American nil. Spot quiet; prices 7 points higher. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 7.12; good middling, 6.87; strict middling, 6.67; middling, 6.57; strict low middling, 6.47; low middling, 6.37; strict good ordinary, 6.17; good ordinary, 5.87. Futures closed steady. October, 6.45; December, 6.44; January, 6.45; March, 6.49; May, 6.53; July, 6.57.

COPPER RISES TO 6 CENTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Copper is 6 cents delivered on domestic account to the end of the year. This is an advance from 5¾ to 5⅞ cents yesterday. Buying is small.

The foreign price is at levels equivalent to 5.92 to 5.95 cents, c. i. f. Hamburg, Havre and London. Buying is in fair volume.

Raincoats Not Necessary Now In Wall Street

—By B. C. FORBES—

B. C. Forbes

ONE NO LONGER has to wear a raincoat when visiting Wall street. Wall street tears, which used to be shed on every convenient shoulder, have dried up.

August stock transactions were the heaviest since April, 1930, and quoted values increased several billions.

Leading brokerage firms have sent out hurry calls to laid-off employes. Thousands have been re-employed during recent weeks. In some instances vacations have been canceled.

THIS WILL interest many borrowers, also banks throughout the country: New York banks refrained from selling out many customers whose collateral became impaired when the stock and bond market fell to their absolutely low levels.

In other words, many borrowers were "carried" by their bankers. Bankers have no desire to run the risk of having to repeat such experiences. Therefore, they have been notifying borrowers that it is up to them to put their loans into proper condition, either by liquidating part of the collateral at the very much higher prices now obtainable, or to pay off part of their loans.

This action has naturally led to no inconsiderable selling of securities, especially stocks, by borrowers. Such enforced liquidation, however, probably has almost run its course.

THE SECURITY market has had to stand up against rather extensive profit-taking by Europeans who had the courage and judgement to buy freely when quotations here were at their worst. Profits of 50 per cent, 75 per cent, 100 per cent in six or seven weeks proved irresistible to many cautious foreign investors. This liquidation, I'm told, has also almost petered out.

The market's buoyancy, indeed, has astonished many. A reaction sufficient to wipe out at least half of the recovery was confidently counted upon some time ago. Instead, the market's absorptive powers greatly exceeded expectations.

Now, security owners cannot figure out whether the traditional 50 per cent reaction will actually occur, or whether, after a brief period of irregularity and moderate weakness, another vigorous upward movement will set in.

Business and industry doubtless will furnish the answer within the next few weeks. If the hoped-for betterment in consumptive demand does materialize within the next month, then the conclusion will be that securities are destined to sell very substantially higher. Should business developments prove acutely disappointing, distinctly bearish deductions will be drawn.

My guess is that hopefulness is warranted by the course of events thus far.

BUSINESS AND banking men who have been traveling through the South tell me that conditions already have improved quite notably. The 100 per cent recovery in cotton isn't the only reason. The discovery has been made that stocks of finished cotton goods are abnormally meager.

Many rush orders could not be filled. The South unquestionably will be further encouraged by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's willingness to advance $50,000,000 on cotton at 5 cents a pound.

A boomlet has also flared up in rayon. Certain woolen and worsted goods likewise are in distinctly brisker demand.

All this is acting as an employment tonic.

HERE IS ONE little straw showing how the wind has begun to blow in the South: New Orleans Association of Commerce is raising a large fund for an advertising and sales campaign. The total has already passed $100,000. This southern city is blessed by having an unusually wide-awake commercial association.

THE OYSTER season opened yesterday. William H. Raye, head of a large foods concern, declares this means employment for 20,000 men, in addition to the 70,000 employed in the oyster industry the year round.

R. F. C. Considers Loans to Textiles

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The Reconstruction Corporation is studying the possibility of lending money to wool and cotton manufacturers to enable them to buy raw material and start manufacture on a larger scale than at present.

Wilson McCarthy, a director of the corporation, said if such action were taken it would be under the section of the law relating to orderly marketing of raw materials.

Du Pont Raises Prices on Rayon

WILMINGTON, Sept. 2. — Du Pont Rayon Company announces a new scale of prices for rayon about 10 cents a pound higher than former levels, in accordance with recent price advances by the Viscose Company.

Burlington Shops Recall 650 Men

AURORA, Ill., Sept. 2. — The Chicago Burlington and Quincy Railway shops here have reopened with 650 men on the payroll.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The Curb Market continued to display moderate strength today on a somewhat larger volume of dealings.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

EEKS OUTLETS FOR JOB LOANS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(AP.) Ways for putting some more of its billions immediately to work in two huge industries—construction and agriculture—were today's chief concern of the Reconstruction Corporation.

Maximum employment was the yardstick announced for corporation financing of self-liquidating construction projects. Harvey C. Couch, director in charge of this loan field created by the relief act, added that the corporation meant the most work in the shortest possible time.

With this object, it is analyzing 194 proposed projects, and Couch said the first of the self-liquidating advances may be expected next week.

For agriculture's assistance the corporation is speeding plans for getting eight credit corporations into operation. Ford Hovey, of South Omaha, Neb., yesterday was named to direct these functions.

VALENTINE

Captivating Story of a Shy Girl Rushed Into Love

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Val Is Disappointed When Lester Fails to Appear After Few Visits

CHAPTER XI.

When they stopped dancing, Val could hear Aunt Julia walking back and forth in the kitchen. Now what was she doing? Fixing refreshments? It couldn't be much past nine. If she served the refreshments so early Lester would probably take it as a hint to go home. Now why couldn't she just go on with her darning, and let them alone?

Val couldn't concentrate on what Lester was saying. He was a wonderful talker. She loved the way he went right along without waiting for her to say something smart back. So different from the other boys she'd known. So—so different—

Just as she thought! Aunt Julia coming with the refreshments! And she hadn't used the best tray, but that miserable black tin one they used in the kitchen. Now, WHY did she do that?

Lester sprang to take the tray, and the plate with the cupcakes. He was so polite.

Aunt Julia beamed. "I'd have made pie, I know boys like pie," she said, smiling so wide that she showed all her big, yellow teeth. "If I'd known that you were coming!"

"Next time I'll tell you. Or you tell me. What day do you make lemon pie?"

"Lemon? Hmm, that's my favorite too. I like a good pie. Val will tell you, my crust is never soggy. That's one thing I can't excuse—a soggy crust!—"

"No, indeed!" Lester murmured, helping himself to another cupcake, twinkling across the room at Val.

SUSPICIOUS RETURN

"A good crust makes the pie. Make a good crust and you practically can't spoil it, unless you put cornstarch in the filling. Some do it with berries, some supposed to be good cooks do, but I never do. I can taste it the first bite, and I don't want another. It's just spoilt for me, crust or no crust—"

"Me, too," said Lester. "I'm certainly going to call on lemon pie night!"

"Now that's what I call a real nice young man. Got some bringing up," Aunt Julia said when he had gone.

But the next night he suggested going out, and all Aunt Julia's suspicions, her instinctive dislike of men, came back.

"Why don't he want to see you here? Isn't this house good enough for him?"

"Oh, Aunt Julia, it isn't that. He just wants to go out. Everybody does! I do, too!"

They went for a drive on Friday, and on Saturday they went to a downtown movie, and then to a chop suey place to dance afterward.

Flushed with success, thrilled to think that at last Aunt Julia was having to worry about her like other girls, Val suggested swimming Sunday afternoon, and supper at home afterwards.

"Don't think I'll be able to make it," he said.

HEARS ABOUT LESTER

Monday, Dorathea Nesbitt, in the office, said, "We had the best time Sunday. My friend and I, and Les Sherwood and his girl went over to Stinson Beach. We had a perfect picnic—crabs and mayonnaise and tons of fresh French bread we bought at a funny bakery along the line—"

"It was a perfect day. We had a gorgeous time, too!"

This wasn't strictly true. Val had spent most of Sunday nursing a sick headache, listening to Aunt Julia lecture on what happens when you work in an office all day, and then go gallivanting out at night.

She wanted to ask about the girl . . . wanted terribly to ask just one teeny-tiny question. But she wouldn't. Not if she died for it.

At first she didn't mind so much. A boy as handsome as Les Sherwood would have other girls, of course. Naturally she couldn't expect him to drop everyone else for her. He might have had that date before he even met her.

But when the week went by, and Saturday came again, she gave up hope.

Just to be doing something she dressed in her nice blue crepe dress, and put on her best pumps, too.

"Going out?"

Aunt Julia, chewing on a crisp soda cracker liberally sprinkled with grated cheese, appeared in the doorway.

"No, I'm not going anywhere."

"Expecting company? I'd better go light up in front—"

AUNT BECOMES ANGRY

Val threw up her hands. "No! I'm sick of company! I'll never have company again. Never! Never!"

"Well, don't get excited about it," Miss Macfarlane advised. Her pale eyes glistened. She pretended to brush away some cracker crumbs. She was no fool. She knew what had happened. That young man of Val's wasn't coming back. Well, it was too bad, if the kid cared, but it was a mercy, just the same.

"Let's go to a movie. We can still make the first show if we hurry. I don't mind leaving the dishes."

Val slipped on her coat.

They walked down the pleasant, tree-lined street. It was a lovely evening. Mrs. Clarkson was sitting on her front stoop, watching Mr. Clarkson water the lawn.

"Evening, Val! Evening, Miss Macfarlane!"

Val smiled grimly.

Aunt Julia stepped along, happy . . . oh, so happy, to have the old Val back.

They had another "perfect" Sunday, reading, and listening to the radio.

Looking back at it, it was almost certain that he hadn't had a very good time that last Saturday night. He didn't seem to enjoy the dancing, and he hardly touched his chopsuey.

Still . . . he did say, "See you, soon."

Perhaps it was the house. A man like Les is used to homes like Dorathea's. Big, comfortable rooms, with firelight and candles, and flowers.

She went into the front room, looked at the stiff chairs in rows. The furniture wasn't so bad. The chesterfield and chairs were all right. If she could just get rid of that awful cupie doll lamp over the radio, and move things around a bit . . .

Aunt Julia came in, found her. It was the only time she had ever made Aunt Julia really angry. It was also the only time she had ever tried to change anything in Aunt Julia's house.

"When you have your own house," she said, "you can fix it anyway you like. This is mine. I don't want it changed. I'll thank you to put my cupie doll lamp back here you got it!"

Relations between them were strained for awhile.

Then Val saw that Aunt Julia was sorry, trying to cook things she liked best, having eclairs and ice cream for dessert. So they made up.

A plan began to form in her mind. She could call him at his office, be very gay and friendly, just as if nothing had happened, and say:

"Aunt Julia made lemon pie today. Want to come to dinner?"

She practiced saying it. It sounded all right. Any girl could call any boy, and ask him a thing like that. He wouldn't think a thing of it.

Yes, he would. He'd think she was just like all the rest—chasing him.

She went into the hall, and sat by the telephone, head in her arms, trying not to call him.

Synopsis

Valentine Macfarlane's childhood is steeped in romance. Her gay, widowed mother, Millie, is her ideal When she is 8, her mother goes to the Orient and leaves Val in Oakland with a man-hating maiden aunt, Julia Macfarlane. During a period of temporary affluence, Millie sends for her daughter, but Aunt Julia clings to her, holding the mother is not a fit guardian. Valentine, a shy, dreamy girl, repressed by her aunt, is fond of Joe Carey, a neighboring boy. Joe's mother dislikes Val and is glad Joe is going east to work. Val finishes school and takes a position in a real estate office as stenographer. Dorathea Nesbitt, who works with Val, invites her to a dance. There she meets Lester Sherwood.

Now Go On

"What day do you make lemon pie?" he asked.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Makes Atonement for His Fit of Jealousy

Mary's lovely, piquant face was a study in warring expressions as I asked her why she had wished to know if Marion were crying. A pleased, complacent, almost triumphant look was struggling with a worried, remorseful one.

"I was afraid perhaps I'd given her too much of a run around," she said, "but if she can snap out of the weeps when she hears somebody at her door, I don't need to worry. I'll just run back and throw the lines out again.

"But oh! boy! is she swallowing hook, line and sinker? The answer is yes; still, yet, and again. When I get through with this stunt I shall put out a shingle, D. O. S. A. T. O. S."

She grinned at my puzzled look and danced back to the door.

"Diverter of Strayed Affections to Original Source," she explained.

A minute's reflection, however, bolstered my original decision to leave the curing of Marion in Mary's capable hands. After all, I reflected, steeling my heart against the remembrance of Marion's tears, any pangs of chagrin or wounded vanity that she might have now were mere pin-pricks besides the suffering she would experience if the unthinkable thing should happen and Charles Owen should succeed in his plan to marry her.

"Did you have a decent luncheon?" my mother-in-law demanded from the doorway.

"Oh, yes! thank you, Mother," I came out of my reverie with a jerk "Katie sent up a very nice tray."

MADGE DISTURBED

"It ought to have been nice," she retorted. "I spent enough time trying to get through her thick head what I wanted for you."

I caught back the injudicious impulse to defend my faithful little maid from this unjust criticism, and took refuge in a mendacious. "I thought I recognized your handiwork" that immediately paid dividends.

"Well, I ought to know something about planning luncheon trays," she said, with a gratified little smile. "Now, if you've finished, suppose you run along. I'm perfectly rested and prepared to take care of my granddaughter. I may be able to play a game of solitaire before she wakens."

I took the hint, and going to a closet took out a folding card table, set it up before her favorite easy chair, and laid out cards upon it.

"Thank you," she said graciously. "That's very nice of you," and the memory of her pleased face was with me as I went down the hall to my own room. There I mentally calculated the time it would take for the trip to the bank for the lock box, and decided that I had time for the quarter-hour nap.

It was not my alarm clock that awakened me, however, but a scratching noise at my door, such as might be made by a friendly puppy. I looked at my clock sulkily, but finding that the interruption had come but a half minute before the end of the rest interval I had planned for myself, I called, "Who's there?" and moved lazily to a sitting posture.

A CLEVER DRAWING

There was no answer, but below the door I saw something white being slowly pushed forward.

I walked to the door leisurely, opened it and looked up and down the corridor. I expected to see the hall deserted and it was. I closed the door again and picked up the white object from the floor with an anticipatory little grin. Dicky had used this ruse before, and I always expect something amusing.

It was a sheet of Dicky's sketch paper that lay before me, and upon it was drawn the figure of a majestic-looking woman with flowing robes, an Elizabethan ruff around her neck and a crown upon her head. With one foot she was rocking a cradle so vigorously that the infant was upon the point of falling out, while her right hand was outstretched menacingly toward an insignificant-looking redheaded little man on his knees before her and looking imploringly up at her.

There was a diabolical cleverness in the way Dicky had caricatured his own features, mine and even Baby Faith's. Underneath he had written this legend:

"If you'd only let me rock the baby, I could bear it."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

The intense heat which we have been having in Pittsburgh the past week and the closing of all but one of the swimming pools in this district, leaves only one other place for the youngsters to go and cool off and be entertained at the same time. And that's for them to attend the regular meetings of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club every Saturday at the theaters listed below.

Aside from being out of the hot sun and off the streets, the youngsters will be cool and be entertained for more than two hours with good, clean, wholesome youthful entertainment.

At the Schenley Theater the members will enjoy the music of the Schenley Orchestra, which recently added two new members—a drummer and a saxaphone player. Bill Corshenhauser, pianist and leader, received from the music publishers in New York a stack of new music which he and the boys have been rehearsing for the past week and which they will play for members for the first time tomorrow.

TO PLAY GAMES

The Enright will have games for the boys and girls and Ruthie Miller and Dolly Fritz will continue working with the members of the Enright dancing class. Manager Zeilor informs us that he hopes to put on the Enright "Frolic," a two-act musical comedy, with the members playing all the parts, before the month of September has passed.

At the Cameraphone, Manager Earl Roeser has several novel contests arranged for the youngsters, and Joe Blowits, of the Manor, has a complete school outfit—pen's, pencils, erasers, etc., for every boy and girl.

Many of the youngsters, when they returned to school yesterday for the first time, found that a great majority of the pupils were members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club. Those that do not belong may join by sending their name and address, name of their parents, date and year of their birth, school they attend, to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today:

Garner Crystal Clear On Principal Issues Of Political Campaign

Republican strategists unwittingly paid tribute to the presidential timber of John Nance Garner, Democratic nominee for the vice presidency, by making him an issue in the campaign.

Usually, the vice presidential candidate is ignored, although in this bizarre campaign Vice President Curtis is used to assuage the drys, while President Hoover flirts cautiously with the wets.

Speaker Garner's acceptance letter knocks into a cocked hat the Republican assertion that he is "dangerous." His statement of policy stamps him for what he is—a SUBSTANTIAL AND LIBERAL MINDED DEMOCRAT OF THE JEFFERSONIAN SCHOOL.

Mr. Garner's attack on concentration of bureaucracy at Washington gave the spirit of his political philosophy.

The clear cut, unequivocal letter of acceptance showed the silliness of the Republican propaganda that Mr. Garner and Mr. Roosevelt might not see the main issues eye to eye.

The Democratic candidates are in harmony with each other, and with the admirable, brief Democratic platform.

Mr. Garner reiterated Gov. Roosevelt's plea that intelligent tariff revision would make debt payment feasible, saying, with characteristic forthrightness:

"I oppose cancellation. I believe we can lessen the seriousness of the problem of collecting our just dues if we restore a just tariff policy. We must be fair and just, not only to foreign nations, but to American taxpayers as well. We must be constantly on our guard against what seems to be a growing pressure from both European and American sources for cancellation, a policy which I consider to be a policy of despair and defeatism."

Mr. Garner berated the Republicans for incurring a vast treasury deficit, for the Hawley-Smoot tariff, which "caused a tremendous decline in our import and export trade and stagnation of commerce throughout the world;" for heightening the boom which preceded the panic by "baseless optimism of an administration that dealt with the people as though they were frightened children," and for opposing Democratic efforts in the last session of Congress to make relief and reconstruction measures sufficiently effective.

Like the chief Democratic standard bearer's expression on prohibition, Mr. Roosevelt's running mate was crystal clear. In setting forth his views, Mr. Garner pointed out:

"Unlike the prohibition plank of the Republican platform, which leaders of that party are interpreting to conform to the sentiments of their audiences, the Democratic platform is unequivocal, understandable by every person who has sufficient intelligence to read. We stand committed to repeal."

Mr. Garner's candid words are at one with his conduct in public office through the decades.

His letter of acceptance emphasizes that the Democratic party rounded out the strength of its ticket by choosing the Speaker of the House as running mate for Gov. Roosevelt.

Abandonment of Mines

Closed Coal Operations Bear Witness to the Handicap Of Unfair Railroad Rates.

Commenting yesterday on new railroad rates which make it possible to ship a ton of coal from Eastern Ohio mines to Cleveland for 39 cents less than it costs to ship a ton of coal from Pittsburgh to Cleveland, we remarked that the railroads serving Pittsburgh, by refusing to reduce rates to permit us to meet competition, had contributed not a little to the strangulation of one of our most important industries and the impoverishment of thousands of people.

Since this was written a report has come to hand which shows the extent of the strangulation and the impoverishment. The State Department of Mines finds, on completion of a study of operating conditions and employment in the bituminous coal mines of Pennsylvania during the last five years, that 512 mines were permanently abandoned in that period. The total production of these mines in the last year of operation was 12,000,000 tons and the total number of employes, 23,000.

The 512 closed mines constitute, roughly, about one-fourth of all the soft coal mines that were operating in Pennsylvania five years ago. Of the 1,528 mines still nominally available for operation many are filled with water, the mine openings have caved in, and the equipment has been removed or destroyed.

Contemplating the wreckage of the Pennsylvania soft coal industry, and reflecting on the part that the railroads serving Pittsburgh have played in wrecking it, one cannot help but wonder if they have not "bitten off their noses to spite their faces." Surely the traffic they have gained through helping competing coal fields at our expense cannot compensate for what they have lost in Pennsylvania.

The recent reduction in the Eastern Ohio rates, which increases the difference between the cost of shipping a ton of coal from Eastern Ohio to Cleveland and the cost of shipping a ton from Pittsburgh to Cleveland from 10 to 39 cents, has resulted in the loss of about 3,000 tons a day of business by Pittsburgh operators.

Yet the railroads, with the exception of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, appear indifferent to the loss of the local traffic, and resist the demand that they restore the 10-cent differential by reducing their rates.

Pittsburgh needs friendly railroads.

Hay Fever and Weeds

Removal of Rank Vegetation Would Help to Alleviate Suffering.

Hay fever sufferers are in the midst of their annual affliction.

Dust and the pollen of plants are responsible for their suffering and aggravate it.

Pittsburgh has an ordinance requiring property owners to remove weeds and grass more than six inches high. Those who fail to do so render themselves liable to a visit by the inspectors of the Bureau of Sanitation, and possible prosecution.

Careful compliance with the ordinance would do much to alleviate the suffering of hay fever victims.

Even though they may not be required to do so by ordinance, the residents of the suburbs should also remove weeds.

Blind to a world forlorn and black,

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Apple of Discord

Nearly every woman goes into marriage with the secret conviction that a man needs to be "mothered." And nearly every man goes to the altar with the firm conviction that a woman needs a "boss."

* * *

And that's where the battle begins! The struggle for supremacy is the first step toward the divorce court.

* * *

The average man's Big Idea seems to be to marry some independent, mettlesome, peppy girl—and then TAME her. All she needs is a masterful, strong he-man to knock some of the headstrong silliness out of her, and drive her with a tight rein.

Even while he is telling her how beautiful and dazzling she is, he is planning to make her give up cocktails, wear more clothes and more bathing suit and wipe off the lip-rouge and mascara.

* * *

Even while he is promising to make her "happy" forever—he is plotting to make her OVER!

* * *

He loves her because she is such a gay, daring, original, efficient young thing. But waft until HE "gets her!" He'll trim off all the raw edges, put a "soft finish" on her manners, and bring her wild ways down to a slower tempo. What a chance!

* * *

Meanwhile, if she's a normal woman, the girl is already mentally selecting his shirts and cravats, planning to put him on a diet, deciding just which of his bachelor friends she'll make him cut out, and conspiring to make him delete his before-dinner cocktail—"all for his own good," of course.

* * *

Even while she is consulting his marvelous "judgment" and making him feel "big and masterful," she is thinking of him as just a spoiled boy who needs a guide, philosopher, guardian and valet.

Even before she knows his middle name or he has discovered the color of her eyes, he is mentally remodeling her into a nice, tame, little housewife and tying her down to the dinette, while she is mentally following him around with a hot-water bottle and recasting him into the "tame husband" role.

* * *

Thus, in time of peace, do they prepare for war!

* * *

Three-quarters of a man's love for a woman is love of conquest. And three-quarters of a woman's love for a man is maternal tenderness—and the desire to "mother" him and fuss over him.

* * *

Oh, well—every man loves to be "mothered" and fussed over—a little. And every woman loves to be "mastered" and bossed—a little. But, nobody loves a reformer or a life-guardian!

* * *

Which is why so many nice marriages go sour, after a few years.

* * *

The Apple of Discord in the Garden of Love is the struggle to turn marriage into a reformatory!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Thoughts while strolling: What a difference 10 years makes! Only that long ago, Adolph Menjou was a flapper's delight. Now he plays the role of unwanted old men. And splendidly. Simile: "As hungry as a bedbug in a haunted house." Ladies with iridescent eye-shadows.

The padded tread of those white-haired messenger "boys." Isaac Marcossen is still the loud-shirt king. Frederick Arnold Kummer, a Cantonsville (Md.) boy, who made good in the city. A beggar turned from an auto, mumbles: "I don't like this any better than you."

Anna Held's daughter. She's running a roadside inn. One word description of Andrew Mellon—icy. That little club on Park avenue where the mycologists—mushroom hunters—gather. They say the banks are trying to head off several scathing book exposes this fall. They would.

So Booth Tarkington is interested in psychic phenomena. That was an amusing autograph of the author for the flapper in the department store: "Heaven bless you and keep you. I wish I could afford to." Overheard: "He brings out the Garbo in me." The flood of "omnibus" books.

That girl has circled around me twice. What is this—the amorous approach? No, she's lost something, I might have known. What is a ship chandler, anyway? Kenyon Nicholson, the playwright, with a collar ad. profile. I believe I'll climb up on a soap box and arraign civilization, too. Hey, hey!

Whenever I pass the Hippodrome, I think of the opening night when Pavlowa, floating out like a puffball, stubbed her toe. Jimmy Tully swaggers out of the Algonquin, his wild mop of fiery hair bared to the wind. The honk of taxis and the scream of steel. O, to hear a fountain fall and a nightingale sing.

Gaping holes in the Manhattan building line grow. In mid-town there are more than a dozen blocks leveled to bleak empty lots, already growing with weeds. High taxes and continued emptiness of the razed structures, of course, are the reasons. Rumor grows that even two recently-built skyscrapers may suffer a like fate.

There is the story of Ring Lardner being called before a movie executive for a story. Had he anything in mind? Gazing at a hole in the floor in the owlish manner that is strictly Lardnerian, the writer explained an idea which had the executive roaring. In fact, he laughed so hard he decided he had better control himself before they got around to discussing terms. Finally he asked the price. He was told $40,000 and he covered his face with his hands in a gesture of shock. When he looked up, Lardner was gone. And no two-page word picture of Lardner could describe him so perfectly.

The freakish growth of the dress establishment of S. Klein, on a rowdy Union Square corner, continues a metropolitan mercantile phenomenon. Selling frocks at from $2.45 to $4.80, he grosses $20,000,00 a year in the worst depression in world history. He was hatched in the stinging poverty of the Ghetto—a starving tailor, bright-eyed, with a burning idea. The trade is entirely self-service and, even though his shop-lifting losses are $100.00 a year, he prospers astonishingly.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Talk sort of languishing around the family dinner table during these "dog days"?

No new jokes—nothing fresh and spicy in the way of gossip?

Then cheer up—for here's a letter that is guaranteed to turn the most peaceful family circle into a free-for-all. If you're looking for excitement, lend an ear.

Dear Miss Robinson:

We are facing an unfortunate situation in our home over which there has been much heated discussion. And, since many other families may be struggling with the same problem, we wondered if you would care to ask for general opinions.

Briefly, the situation is this. We have two fine children—a boy of 18 and a girl of 17. They are both high school graduates—and both wish to enter college this fall or after Christmas. But here's the trouble—

DUE TO CONDITIONS, WE HAVE ONLY ENOUGH MONEY TO SEND ONE OF THEM TO COLLEGE. NOR WOULD IT BE POSSIBLE TO STRETCH THIS AMOUNT TO COVER THE NEEDS OF BOTH. SO WE ARE FORCED TO CHOOSE. WHICH YOUNGSTER SHOULD BE GIVEN THIS OPPORTUNITY?

Frankly, the girl has always made a better record in school than the boy. Although she is a year younger, she has been in the same grade. They are both well behaved children, and the boy has a good mind, too. But she seems a little quicker and perhaps more given to study. Like all boys, he thinks more of athletics than books.

Now, of course, I would like to send both of them through college. But since that is impossible, I tell my wife the boy ought to go. I believe that a college education is more necessary for a boy than it is for a girl. Life is pretty hard for young fellows and the more help you can give them the better. As for girls, most of them marry, anyway.

But my wife says that a girl needs a college career as much as a boy needs it—even if it's only to get married. Of course, she hates to see Bob lose out, but she thinks that since Stella is brighter, she ought to have the chance.

I admit, the argument has begun to get pretty hot. My wife says the trouble is that I don't really believe in college education for girls. Maybe she is a little right. I have seen a college education spoil many a girl who would have been content to marry some hard working young fellow if she hadn't gotten a lot of fool notions in her head.

But still I wouldn't deny my girl an education for that reason, if I had the price. But I haven't. There is no way out—we must make the choice. So what is your advice?

A Worried Father.

So there you are—

And what's YOUR vote—and YOURS—and YOURS?

Does the girl get the B. A.—or the boy?

And if so, why so?

Let's hear.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There are times when you feel that you are merely a plugger in the ordinary ranks of life and that you don't amount to much.

You have a strong case of inferiority complex.

Why should you feel that your humble position makes you of little use?

If it were not for those occupying positions such as you fill, the world affairs could not go on.

Your class is in the big majority, if you are one of the workers.

And the workers are the very substantial support of the backbone of business undertakings.

Those whom you think of as in more favorable circumstances would be in a serious plight if it were not for you and your class.

If you are doing honest work in an honest way you have no reason to feel insignificant and unimportant.

You might have more luxury and comfort if you were filling a higher and better paid job.

But you might not be any happier.

Too much importance is attached to the possession of money as a requisite of happiness.

Often there is more helpful understanding in homes of the masses.

Text For Today

To the Average Man: Under Which Flag?

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Unquestionably the finest piece of oratory heard in the Democratic national convention was the speech of Gov. Ely, of Massachusetts, putting Al Smith in nomination. It was the only speech that smacked of artistry. It was all the more effective because of the sincerity of the speaker's personal devotion to his candidate. In a speech for Roosevelt at Danbury, Conn., Sunday, he put his finger on one of the primary reasons for the continuing depression when he said:

"Sound economic conditions always depend upon the free flow of trade between community and community, and between nation and nation. The Republican party has created the highest tariff the world has ever seen. Other countries have been forced to set up similar tariffs, and the trade of the world is damned behind those tariff barriers."

The effect on America has been the loss of the foreign markets; and this has enormously reduced the demand for the products of American factories; and this has put workers jobless on the street; and this has reduced correspondingly, the selling power of the merchants.

Of the more than 10 million jobless men, one-fourth are jobless because of this Chinese wall against foreign trade.

But in his latest "conference," Mr. Hoover announces that he wants no mention of the tariff made. It is just such "leadership" that has wrecked the business fabric of the nation.

The Democrats propose that we negotiate with other nations for such reciprocal concessions as to make possible the flow of trade without which prosperity can never return. Mr. Hoover vetoed that reasonable plan. It is up to the victims of this Hoover policy to determine at the polls.

* * *

Wall Street Shows Its Stupidity

Meanwhile Wall street "leadership," which in the last few years has suggested that of a stuffed shirt with nothing above the collar, is planning to go the limit to "get Roosevelt." It suffers from this prohibitive tariff as much as anyone else since its foreign debtors cannot pay their debts if prohibited.

Whatever money is required it will furnish—perhaps through dummies. It has not had money to loan to legitimate business offering adequate security; and the nation seems unable to get enough money to take care of hungry women and children; but millions can be found for Mr. Hoover.

The reason is patent. In his Columbus speech—the only realistic utterance of a presidential nominee this year—Mr. Roosevelt demanded certain reforms that every intelligent and honest American in business, or out, demands.

He proposes to draw a clear line between legitimate and speculative banking; because without speculative banking there would have been no such crash as that of October, 1929. Everyone knows that to be true.

He proposes to put an end to the partnership of the people's government with international bankers flooding the country with worthless foreign securities; and all the victims of this policy are in sympathy with this proposal.

He intends to return to the pre-Hoover policy when government thought it vicious to issue statements to influence the battling of the bulls and bears—to influence the market.

There is one section of Roosevelt's Columbus speech which has put the fear of the Lord into the hearts of market manipulators and of the Administration, and here it is:

"I assure you that high public officials in the next Administration will neither by word nor deed seek to influence the prices of stocks and bonds. The government has access to vast information concerning the economic life of the country. The present Administration has all too often issued statements which have had no relation to the scientific information which it possessed. This has shaken public confidence."

* * *

Public Misled Into Bad Investments

Millions of money taken from savings banks, and secured on mortgages, and lost on the market, would not have been ventured but for the assurances from high governmental officials that there was sound value behind the ridiculously soaring market prices.

These officials knew, because it was their business to know, that their was not sound value there; that the earnings of stock did not and could not justify the market prices. Instead of warning the inexperienced investor it actually misstated the facts—and led vast numbers to their ruin.

Not many years ago, before the country became plutocracy-mad, this would have been considered an impeachable offense.

Roosevelt intends to stop that vicious practice; and that makes him a "dangerous man" for some and a very safe man for the average person.

* * *

Farmers Near Revolution

Meanwhile, as Mr. Hoover's latest "conference" talks, the farmers of the West are in revolutionary mood, driven to revolutionary methods by the persistency with which they have been discriminated against and ruined. They are forcing some concessions, too. But the only way to end the system without revolutionary methods is to do it at the polls.

A press report says some of these farmers "blame the East." They blame Wall street and its recent methods—not the East. The East has been as much victimized by these methods as the West. There is the same feeling in New York as there is in Iowa.

And so Wall street and the international bankers mobilize to help Hoover with slush funds; and Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, appears upon our shores as "Prof. Clarence Skinner"—meditate a moment upon the last name—and goes into secret conferences with representatives of the House of Morgan.

When so distinguished a person as Norman thinks it important to sneak in and sneak out without his presence being generally known it may logically be assumed that he thinks and those with whom he confers here think it best that the American people be kept in ignorance of his presence and his mission.

* * *

Worst Distress Feared This Winter

And while, as Mr. Hoover's "conference" talks for the campaign, a meeting of welfare workers is called in New York for September 15. This conference has been thought necessary, because, in the language of the director of the Association of Community Chests and Councils, these charity workers think that this winter they will be confronted "with the most trying period" yet.

The Hoover regime long denied distress; it misrepresented the number of the jobless; it bitterly opposed an adequate public works program; it ignored the human problem of the unemployed.

Having defeated an adequate program of public works, financed by a "prosperity loan," it agreed to some inadequate measures. It agreed to $300,000,000 for relief; and the welfare organizations announce that this will care for but half—not of the unemployed—but half of the "increased needs."

And having agreed to a public works program of $322,000,000, Senator Wagner has just asked Secretary Mills why, after 45 days, not a wheel has been turned by the administration to start work and put men in jobs. This is in keeping with the entire attitude of the administration toward the unemployed.
